

Mathematical Representation of the relationship between variables

Consider a simple example: a car moving with a constant speed. The distance traveled by the car is directly proportional to the time taken. This relationship can be represented by a linear equation:  $d = vt$ , where  $d$  is the distance,  $v$  is the speed, and  $t$  is the time. The graph of this equation is a straight line passing through the origin. The slope of the line represents the speed of the car. This is a simple example of a linear relationship. In more complex systems, the relationships between variables can be non-linear, and the mathematical representation may involve differential equations or other advanced mathematical tools.
