

STUDYING PEDIGREES ACTIVELY

Genealogical is gathering or creating a tree that depicts a family history or the transmission of a specific trait. They have been increasingly in vogue and have become important tools in identifying patterns of inheritance of specific traits. Pedigrees can depict inheritance for specific characteristics without involving a complex debate on how phenotypic values relate to variation and genetically determined structure in our or basic population. They are also used before testing for Mendelian-like pathogenic mutations to suggest a hypothesis about the inheritance of a specific trait. Pedigree analysis examples:

The Components of a Pedigree:

Unaffected individuals: boxed (male)

Affected individuals: shaded (male)

Carrier individuals: circle with a dot (female)

Marriage: horizontal line (male)

Offspring: vertical line (female)

Consanguinity: double horizontal line (male)

Adoption: horizontal line with a vertical line (male)
