

THE HUMAN BODY: AN ORIENTATION

Most of us have a general awareness about our bodies, but a basic set of common and appropriate information on this subject, especially from a biological viewpoint, is lacking. Accordingly, as we progress through this course, you will learn about human anatomical structure in both aspects of structure (anatomy) and function (physiology). From both aspects, the other language used in describing anatomy and physiology, that of function, needs a special introduction, because it brings us closer to home.

The course on the human body is divided into two main sections of anatomy and physiology. The first section, anatomy, is the study of the structure of the human body, and the second section, physiology, is the study of the function of the human body. The course is divided into two main sections: anatomy and physiology. The first section, anatomy, is the study of the structure of the human body, and the second section, physiology, is the study of the function of the human body.
