James Hadley Chase, 1967 Catalog of Copyright Entries. Third Series Library of Congress. Copyright Office, 1958 Includes Part 1 Number 1 2 Books and Pamphlets Including Serials and Contributions to Periodicals January December Fucking On Fridays Clive Kristen, 2016-01-27 Dennis Lorraine died in self imposed obscurity in South London During the last three decades of his life he slept with a revolver under his pillow Dennis's childhood in a Bristol orphanage gave him a thirst for success The University of Life however made him cabin boy code breaker and actor By his early thirties he had married four times and fathered a dozen children He maintained a lavish lifestyle by preying on older women He became a trusted friend of the famous and wanted to be like them With his partner screen idol and Oscar winner George Sanders he created the Company of Cads which was to become the driving force behind the greatest financial scandal of the 1960s. Celebrity investors who included world famous author Graham Greene and silent movie legend Charlie Chaplin had their careers compromised. The Cads also took millions from the public purse. When the company collapsed, Dennis went underground as a US Secret Service mole and was instrumental in bringing to justice those behind the biggest counterfeiting operation in US history. As a consequence of this and a possible attempt to embarrass a future Prime Minister, the Cads scandal was whitewashed and none of the principals were brought to justice in the UK. As Dennis Lorraine's oldest son, I am uniquely placed to tell his story. The intention throughout is to excavate the truth and to reveal something of the world in which my father lived and moved. Significant events are corroborated by solid documentary evidence.

The 1940s: A Decade of Modern British Fiction Philip Tew, Glyn White, 2022-02-24. How did social, cultural and political events concerning Britain during the 1940s reshape modern British fiction? During the Second World War and in its aftermath, British literature experienced and recorded drastic and decisive changes to old certainties. Moving from potential invasion and defeat to victory, the creation of the welfare state and a new Cold War threat, the pace of historical change seemed too rapid and monumental for writers to match. Consequently, the 1940s were often sidelined in literary accounts as a dividing line between periods and styles. Drawing on more recent scholarship and research, this volume surveys and analyses this period's fascinating diversity, from novels of the Blitz and the Navy to the rise of important new voices, with its contributors exploring the work of influential women, Commonwealth exiles, genre avant garde and queer writers. A major critical re-evaluation of the intriguing decade, this book offers substantial chapters on Elizabeth Bowen, Graham Greene and George Orwell, as well as covering such writers as Jocelyn Brooke, Monica Dickens, James Hadley Chase, Patrick Hamilton, Gerald Kersh, Daphne du Maurier, Mary Renault, Denton Welch and many others.

Mystery Fanfare Michael L. Cook, 1983. This work is a composite index of the complete runs of all mystery and detective fan magazines that have been published through 1981. Added to it are indexes of many magazines of related nature. This includes magazines that are primarily oriented to boys, book collecting, the paperbacks and the pulp magazine hero characters, since these all have a place in the mystery and detective genre.

Reflections: Coloured and Grey N. V. Nair. The book describes the early struggles of a young student trying to find a career in the 1970s when job opportunities were few and the academic landscape bleak, leaving limited options for progression. Undaunted, his pursuit of excellence lands him in a coveted position as a scientist in a premier organization. Inexperienced and raw, he finds the journey tough and faces situations that demand deft and firm handling. He sails through most of them, though not always successfully. His interactions within the organization, the harmony and conflicts confrontations and reconciliations arising out of various situations are overcome each providing unique experiences that help him move forward. Some situations he navigated with ease while others tested his resolve. What sets the book apart is the diversity of its content weaving together personal anecdotes, professional insights and reflections on life. The author brings a unique perspective to the narrative infusing the text with his scientific background while maintaining an accessible and engaging tone. Many of the experiences are unique due to the nature of his profession which most people do not typically experience making the narrative even more interesting. This blend of personal and professional elements gives the book distinct appeal making it not only a memoir but also a deeper exploration of the intersections between professional and personal life. This unique blend of professional insight, personal reflection and scientific perspective offers a rich, multifaceted exploration of what it means to pursue a career, to confront setbacks and to grow as a person in the process. The Observing Self (Routledge Revivals) Graham Good, 2014-08-01. First published in 1988, this title is a study of the essay as a literary genre, not just in terms of its general intellectual and literary history but as an exploration of the creative possibilities of the form. The rise of the essay is discussed in relation to the rise of the novel and the emergence of empiricism in science, but the main focus of Graham Good's study is on the inner workings of the essay itself. Drawing on criticism by Adorno and Lukács, Graham Good presents the genre as an expression of individualism freed from tradition and authority in which the self constructs itself and its object through independent observation. Through analysis of the work of such essayists as Montaigne, Bacon, Virginia Woolf, T. S. Eliot and George Orwell, the potential of the genre for independence and individualism is illustrated and the essay is resituated as an intellectually challenging form of creative and critical writing.
