

A photograph of a transmission front cover assembly, which is a large, dark, cast metal component with a complex internal structure. It is shown from a top-down perspective, revealing various internal parts like shafts, gears, and bearings. The cover is resting on a light-colored, patterned tile floor. Several yellow arrows point to specific areas on the internal components, indicating where high-temperature grease should be applied. The text "Lightly lube these areas with high temp grease" is written in yellow above the arrows. The text "Transmission front cover" is written in yellow below the main assembly.
