Aflatoxins Unnevehr, Laurian, Grace, Delia, 2013-09-30 Aflatoxins are a naturally occurring carcinogenic byproduct of common fungi on grains and other crops particularly maize and groundnuts They pose a significant public health risk in many tropical developing countries and are also a barrier to the growth of domestic and international commercial markets for food and feed In recent years the aflatoxin problem has garnered greatly increased attention from both policy and donor communities around the globe What can be done to reduce the detrimental impacts of aflatoxins Because growth of the molds that produce aflatoxins is caused by multiple factors and because they must be controlled along the entire value chain from production to consumption only a robust multifaceted approach to controlling aflatoxins is likely to be effective The nineteen briefs in this set thus provide different perspectives on aflatoxin risks and solutions The analyses fall under four broad themes 1 what is known about the health risks from aflatoxins 2 how to overcome market constraints to improved aflatoxin control by building new market channels and incentives 3 what is the international policy context for taking action in developing countries and 4 what is the state of research on new aflatoxin control technologies including new methods for aflatoxin detection crop breeding biological control food storage and handling and postharvest mitigation These briefs collectively provide a much clearer picture of the state of current efforts at combatting aflatoxins They also identify what gaps loom particularly large including the need for country specific risk analysis and for testing integrated solutions for the entire supply chain in our global efforts to effectively reduce human exposure to aflatoxins and increase the economic returns to smallholders in agriculture Greening the Common Agricultural Policy Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons. Environment, Food and Rural Affairs Committee, 2012 The European Commission proposes that 30% of direct payments made to farmers under the Common Agricultural Policy CAP would be conditional on compliance with three new greening measures While supporting the Commission's desire to improve the environment the EFRA Committee rejects the approach proposed Instead it calls for the EU to set high level objectives for the CAP that provide for flexibility to apply the right measures for local conditions through decentralising environmental protection under the CAP to Member States This report highlights the huge benefit that UK agri environment schemes have brought to biodiversity food production and the countryside The Committee also urged Defra to ensure that the UK s tenant farmers should not be excluded from these schemes The Committee concludes that Defra must ensure the balance of funding between mandatory and voluntary aspects of the CAP should not leave UK farmers at a competitive disadvantage relative to their counterparts in the rest of Europe MPs also warn that measures proposed by the Commission would be even more complex than the current system adding costly bureaucracy and generating more errors in the system Likewise the committee concludes that the Commission s crop diversification measure would in the UK have perverse consequences that are far less environmentally beneficial than crop rotation Of the three greening measures offered the Commission s proposal for Ecological Focus Areas EFA has the potential to deliver the greatest environmental benefit However the lack of definitions within the proposals make it difficult to assess what if any such benefits would actually be delivered
