Before comparing within-subjects and between-groups F tests, we first collapsed groups together on the basis that, prior to using them for statistical analysis, we decided to use the same number of groups as we had conditions, with groups being defined on the basis of the number of groups used in each condition. This meant that we had 12 groups in each condition, with 12 conditions in each condition. We then used a 2 (within-subjects) \times 2 (between-subjects) F test to compare the two conditions. The results of the F test are shown in Table 1.

The U.S. Air Force relies on RPA to support the global combat strategy against proliferated threats. The U.S. Air Force's current and planned operations in Afghanistan and Iraq are a testament to the capability of RPA. RPA is being employed in a number of US Department of Defense operations. The Department of Defense is also looking at RPA to help reduce the number of personnel in dangerous conditions for high-level operations, thereby reducing risk and increasing efficiency.¹⁰ Our research also found a strong dependence on RPA in training at all 3 degrees, but that the bulk of that research is in the field of military, U.S. Air Force.¹¹ Defense relies heavily on RPA training that is needed for personnel to use RPA in the field, consisting of over 100,000 hours of training for personnel in the Department of Defense.¹²
