

SeisWorks® Horizon Input

SeisWorks® Horizon Input imports interpreted horizon files directly from the SeisWorks® horizons stored in the legacy OpenWorks® (version 2003.12.X) database and saves them as ProMAX® horizon tables.

Note: To read and write R5000 version SeisWorks® horizons, use the SeisSpace® R5000 tools.

In order to use SeisWorks® Horizon Input, you must have a valid OpenWorks® license.

Theory

SeisWorks® horizons are read directly from the legacy OpenWorks® (version 2003.12.X) interpretation database and saved as ProMAX® horizon tables within the Area and Line in which the SeisWorks® Horizon Input process is executed.

To ensure that a pick is available for every trace within the SeisWorks® database, it is usually desirable to perform a global snap of all horizons within the SeisWorks® software prior to importing them. In the case of large datasets, such as those in excess of 10,000 lines, it may be necessary to import the SeisWorks® horizon file from sub-sets of lines within the SeisWorks® project. You are therefore presented the option of selecting the lines from which interpretations should be imported.

In addition, you are permitted to decimate the incoming table when using SeisWorks® Horizon Input. Once in the ProMAX® system, picks can always be snapped in order to get picks output for every trace. This is usually desirable when using such processes as Sequence Attribute Analysis (SAA).

Note: Decimating the horizon table has virtually no effect on Sequence Attribute Analysis run times, and is therefore not recommended. The most effective way to reduce SAA run times is to decimate the number of traces being imported via SeisWorks® Seismic Input.
