Unhealthy Language: Linguistic Investigations of Covid-19 Discourse Justyna Robinson, Roberta Piazza, Rodney Jones, 2024-10-01. The proposed volume reflects on the Coronavirus pandemic as a still evolving phenomenon and captures critically its socially constructed dimension. The papers by well established international contributors deal with a variety of themes that range from the different discourses of the first and second lockdown, the comparative responses to Covid in different parts of the world in light of the relationship between language and culture and the reflection of who the actors are, who talk and are talked about in relation to the pandemic. This last theme in particular offers a wide variety of responses from politicians and health experts, communications to the voices of marginal individuals and groups like the refugees. The overall questions the papers as a whole try to answer is whether the discourses of and around Covid are equalizing or inciting inequality, whether they perpetuate existing structures of dominance and exclusion and if and how they contributed to language change. The volume offers an opportunity to both discourse analysts and sociolinguists to cross paths and work together. The variety of analytic approaches adopted in both linguistic fields from corpus assisted and computational approaches to survey and interview based studies guarantees a ground breaking interdisciplinary volume with contributions designed to include linguistic analysis at all levels including the plane of grammatical description lexis phonology and discourse analysis

Grammaticalization and First Language Acquisition Dominique Bassano, Maya Hickmann, 2013-05-29

Grammaticalization and lexicalization are at the heart of first language acquisition Understanding how these processes begin and evolve is a major challenge for current theories and has implications for applications in teaching or clinical contexts This volume examines the relative weight of cognitive and linguistic determinants of acquisition with particular attention to two questions The first one concerns the origins of grammar and the processes underlying its development Is grammatical knowledge innate or constructed by the child Is it modular or does it interact with other capacities How can we account for continuity and discontinuity in development What is the role of input Second considerable variation is observed in lexical and grammatical development across child languages Is the process of acquisition similar in all children or do language specific factors impact its rhythm and course Do typological factors determine children's reliance on lexical or grammatical means of expression in some domains Originally published in Language Interaction and Acquisition Language Interaction et Acquisition

Boundaries Crossed, at the Interfaces of Morphosyntax, Phonology, Pragmatics and Semantics Huba Bartos, Marcel den Dikken, Zoltán Bánréti, Tamás Váradi, 2018-06-25 This volume offers a selection of interface studies in generative linguistics a valuable one stop shopping opportunity for readers interested in the ways in which the various modules of linguistic analysis intersect and interact The boundaries between the lexicon and morphophonology between morphology and syntax between morphosyntax and meaning and between morphosyntax and phonology are all being crossed in this volume Though its focus is on theoretical approaches experimental studies are also included The empirical focus of many of the contributions is on Hungarian and several chapters respond to work published by István Kenesei to whom the volume is dedicated The Mainland Southeast Asia

Linguistic Area Alice Vittrant, Justin Watkins, 2019-06-04 This book lies at the crossroads of areal typology language contact and genetic affiliation Concerned with mainland Southeast Asia in particular the various grammatical sketches lay emphasis on characteristics shared by unrelated languages The Grammar of Inalienability Hilary Chappell, William

McGregor, 2011-08-25 Research on language universals and research on linguistic typology are not antagonistic but rather complementary approaches to the same fundamental problem the relationship between the amazing diversity of languages and the profound unity of language Only if the true extent of typological divergence is recognized can universal laws be formulated In recent years it has become more and more evident that a broad range of languages of radically different types must be carefully analyzed before general theories are possible Typological comparison of this kind is now at the centre of linguistic research The series empirical approaches to language typology presents a platform for contributions of all kinds to this rapidly developing field The distinctive feature of the series is its markedly empirical orientation All conclusions to be reached are the result of a deepened study of empirical data General problems are focused on from the perspective of individual languages language families language groups or language samples Special emphasis is given to the analysis of phenomena from little known languages which shed new light on long standing problems in general linguistics The series is open to contributions from different theoretical persuasions It thus reflects the methodological pluralism that characterizes the present situation Care is taken that all volumes be accessible to every linguist and moreover to every reader specializing in some domain related to human language A deeper understanding of human language in general based on a detailed analysis of typological diversity among individual languages is fundamental for many sciences not only for linguists Therefore this series has proven to be indispensable in every research library be it public or private which has a specialization in language and the language sciences To discuss your book idea or submit a proposal please contact Birgit Sievert

Modality and language acquisition: How does the channel through which language is expressed affect how children and adults are able to learn? Richard P. Meier, Christian Rathmann, Aaron Shield, 2023-12-19 Biblical and Ancient Greek Linguistics, Volume 11 Stanley E. Porter, Matthew Brook O'Donnell, 2024-06-06 Biblical and Ancient Greek Linguistics BAGL is an international journal that exists to further the application of modern linguistics to the study of Ancient and Biblical Greek with a particular focus on the analysis of texts including but not restricted to the Greek New Testament The journal is hosted by McMaster Divinity College and works in conjunction with its Centre for Biblical Linguistics Translation and Exegesis and the OpenText.org organization www.opentext.org in the sponsoring of conferences and symposia open to scholars and students working in Greek linguistics who are interested in contributing to advancing the discussion and methods of the field of research BAGL is a refereed on line and print journal dedicated to distributing the results of significant research in the area of linguistic theory and application to biblical and ancient Greek and is open to all scholars not just those connected to the Centre and the OpenText.org project A typology of questions in Northeast Asia and beyond Andreas Hölzl, 2018-08-29 This study investigates the distribution of linguistic and specifically structural diversity in Northeast Asia NEA defined as the region north of the Yellow River and east of the Yenisei In particular it analyzes what is called the grammar of questions GQ i.e. those aspects of any given language that are specialized for asking questions or regularly combine with these The bulk of the study is a bottom up description and comparison of GQs in the languages of NEA The addition of the phrase and beyond to the title of this study serves two purposes First languages such as Turkish and Chuvash are included despite the fact that they are spoken outside of NEA since they have ties to or even originated in the region Second despite its focus on one area the typology is intended to be applicable to other languages as well Therefore it makes extensive use of data from languages outside of NEA The restriction to one category is necessary for reasons of space and clarity and the process of zooming in on one region allows a higher resolution and historical accuracy than is usually the case in linguistic typology The discussion mentions over 450 languages and dialects from NEA and beyond and gives about 900 glossed examples The aim is to achieve both a cross linguistically plausible typology and a maximal resolution of the linguistic diversity of Northeast Asia
