France Jean-Louis Cohen, 2014-08-15 Everyone knows Notre Dame the Eiffel Tower and the chateaux of the Loire Valley but French architects have also produced some of the most iconic buildings of the twentieth century playing a central role in the emergence and development of modernism In France Jean Louis Cohen presents a complete narrative of the unfolding architectural modernity in the country grappling not only with the buildings but also with the political and critical context surrounding them Cohen examines the developments in urban design and architecture within France depicting the continuities and breaks in French architecture since 1900 against a broader international background Describing the systems of architectural exchange with other countries including Italy Germany Russia and the United States he offers a new view on the ideas projects and buildings otherwise so often considered only from narrow nationalistic perspectives Cohen also maps the problematic search for a national identity against the background of European rivalries and France's colonial past Drawing on a wealth of recent research this authoritatively written book will challenge the way design professionals and historians view modern French architecture

Modernising Post-war France Nicholas Bullock, 2022-11-22 This book is about the role played by architects engineers and planners in transforming France during the three post war decades of growing prosperity a period when modernisation was a central priority of the state promising a way forward from the shame of defeat in 1940 to a place at the centre of the new Europe The first part of the book examines the scale of transformation showing how architecture and urbanism both served the cause of modernisation and shaped the identity of the new France Mainstream modernism was co opted to the service of the state from major public buildings to Gaullist plans for the transformation of Paris to establish the city as the capital of Europe By contrast the second part of the book explores the critique of state sponsored modernisation by radical architects from Le Corbusier to the young Turks of the 1960s such as Georges Candilis and the students who attacked the banality of mainstream modernism and its inability to address the growing problems of France's cities Following May 1968 the Beaux

Arts was closed the Grand Prix de Rome symbol of the old order abolished for a while the establishment might continue as before but progressive architecture was set on a new course Beautifully illustrated and written to be accessible to all the book sets the discussion of architecture and urbanism in its social political and economic contexts As such it will appeal both to students and scholars of the history of architecture and urbanism and to those with a wider interest in France's post war history

The Figure of Knowledge Sebastiaan Loosen, Rajesh Heynickx, Hilde Heynen, 2020-10-01 It is a major challenge to write the history of post WWII architectural theory without boiling it down to a few defining paradigms An impressive anthologising effort during the 1990s charted architectural theory mostly via the various theoretical frameworks employed such as critical theory critical regionalism deconstructivism and pragmatism Yet the intellectual contours of what constitutes architectural theory have been constantly in flux It is therefore paramount to ask what kind of knowledge has become important in the recent history of architectural theory and how the resulting figure of knowledge sets the conditions for the actual arguments made The contributions in this volume focus on institutional geographical rhetorical and other conditioning factors They thus screen the unspoken rules of engagement that postwar architectural theory ascribed to

Marginal to Mainstream Toby Norris, 2023-10-30 Marginal to Mainstream French Modernism Between the Wars traces the near miraculous progress of modern art in France in the first half of the twentieth century Before World War I it was a marginal phenomenon largely absent from the museums and bought and sold by a handful of second string dealers by the early 1950s it had been canonized as the representative form of the epoch The triumph of modernism and the simultaneous establishment of Paris as the crucible of modern art were not the products of a coherent policy but of a stumbling and spasmodic process France was the leading democratic nation in Europe and it wanted its art to reinforce its prestige on the international stage but no one could agree how best to achieve this Toby Norris shows how amidst the policy squabbles and in fighting of representative government France fumbled its way toward an art of democracy and in the process helped install modern art as the house style of democratic capitalism

Años 30 Jordana Mendelshon, 2012 The 1930s was a turbulent decade across the world with the rise of totalitarian governments the outbreak of the Spanish Civil War the start of World War II and the constant migration of artists as part of evolving social economic and political geographies that were marked by utopian dreams and devastating upheavals This book approaches the 1930s and seeks to explore the microhistories that detail the movement of artists across borders the potential transformation of artistic styles and the concurrent struggle to preserve old networks amidst the creation of new communities in often radically new contexts of artistic production Touching on the works of Cartier Bresson Max Ernst Miro Picasso and many more as well as examining aspects of Surrealism Abstraction propaganda and photography this is an insightful account of one of the most turbulent decades in the history of art

Art of the Defeat Laurence Bertrand Dorléac, 2008 Art of the Defeat offers an unflinching look at the pivotal role art played in France during the German occupation It begins with Adolf Hitler's staging of the armistice at Rethondes and moves across the dark years analyzing the official junket by French artists to Germany the exhibition of Arno Breker's colossi in Paris the looting of the state museums and Jewish collections the glorification of Philippe Pétain and a pure national identity the demonization of modernists and foreigners and the range of responses by artists and artisans The sum is a pioneering exposé of the deployment of art and ideology to hold the heart of darkness at bay Page 4 of cover      Architectures of Bureaucracy Jens van de Maele, 2025-01-27 This monograph examines the interrelationship between politics and modernist architecture in interwar Belgium focusing on political architectural and administrative elites as propagators of new ideas of governance While Belgium was strongly influenced by neighbouring France and Germany it also developed its own avant garde approaches to socio political problems In the second half of the 1930s the country was the scene of a remarkable political and architectural experiment involving an ambitious plan for the large scale construction of modernist government office buildings These buildings were seen as essential to the development of a technocratic model of governance aimed at strengthening the role of the executive and minimising the influence of parliament More specifically the efficient new office architecture was supposed to create a new type of perfect civil servant whose loyalties would no longer lie with political parties but with scientists and management experts Such experts and scientists constituted a rising elite of homines novi with strong though often veiled political ambitions As such this book contributes to our understanding of political culture in the age of extremes      Paradise Planned Robert A.M.
