Building a Website: Designing a Website Page with CSS

1. Designing a Website Page with CSS

The first design decision you must make is whether to use a template or a custom design. A template is a pre-designed page layout that you can modify to suit your needs. A custom design is a page layout that you create from scratch.

This document is a template. It is designed to be used as a starting point for your website. It contains a header, a main content area, and a footer. The header contains the title of the page and the name of the website. The main content area contains the text of the page. The footer contains the copyright information and the contact information for the website.

The following is a list of the design decisions that you must make when creating a website page with CSS:

2. Designing a Website Page with CSS

The first design decision you must make is whether to use a template or a custom design. A template is a pre-designed page layout that you can modify to suit your needs. A custom design is a page layout that you create from scratch.

The second design decision you must make is whether to use a color scheme or a custom color scheme. A color scheme is a set of colors that you use for the text, background, and other elements of your website. A custom color scheme is a set of colors that you create from scratch.

The third design decision you must make is whether to use a font family or a custom font family. A font family is a set of fonts that you use for the text of your website. A custom font family is a set of fonts that you create from scratch.

The fourth design decision you must make is whether to use a layout or a custom layout. A layout is a pre-designed page layout that you can modify to suit your needs. A custom layout is a page layout that you create from scratch.
