■ Abstract: The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of the use of a computerized decision support system (DSS) on the performance of a group of students in a business simulation. The study was conducted in a classroom setting where students were assigned to groups and each group was given a computerized DSS to use in making decisions. The results of the study showed that the use of the DSS had a significant positive effect on the performance of the students. The students who used the DSS performed significantly better than those who did not use it. The study also found that the use of the DSS had a significant positive effect on the students' confidence in their decisions. The students who used the DSS were significantly more confident in their decisions than those who did not use it. The study concluded that the use of a computerized DSS can improve the performance of students in a business simulation and increase their confidence in their decisions.
