The Geography of Injustice Barak Kushner, 2024-03-15 In The Geography of Injustice Barak Kushner argues that the war crimes tribunals in East Asia formed and cemented national divides that persist into the present day In 1946 the Allies convened the Tokyo Trial to prosecute Japanese wartime atrocities and Japan s empire At its conclusion one of the judges voiced dissent claiming that the justice found at Tokyo was only the sham employment of a legal process for the satisfaction of a thirst for revenge War crimes tribunals Kushner shows allow for the history of the defeated to be heard In contemporary East Asia a fierce battle between memory and history has consolidated political camps across this debate The Tokyo Trial courtroom as well as the thousands of other war crimes tribunals opened in about fifty venues across Asia were legal stages where prosecution and defense curated facts and evidence to craft their story about World War Two These narratives and counter narratives form the basis of postwar memory concerning Japan s imperial aims across the region The archival record and the interpretation of court testimony together shape a competing set of histories for public consumption The Geography of Injustice offers compelling evidence that despite the passage of seven decades since the end of the war East Asia is more divided than united by history

Amaza Lee Meredith Imagines Herself Modern Jacqueline Taylor, 2023-11-28 The extraordinary life and work of architect Amaza Lee Meredith and the role modernism and material culture played in the aspiring Black American middle class of the early twentieth century Amaza Lee Meredith Imagines Herself Modern tells the captivating story of Amaza Lee Meredith a Black woman architect artist and educator born into the Jim Crow South whose bold choices in both life and architecture expand our understanding of the Great Migration and the Harlem Renaissance while revealing the importance of architecture as a force in Black middle class identity Through her charismatic protagonist Jacqueline Taylor derives new insights into the experiences of Black women at the forefront of culture in early twentieth century America caught between expectation and ambition responsibility and desire Central to Taylor s argument is that Meredith s response to modern architecture and art like those of other Black cultural producers was not marginal to the modernist project instead her work reveals the tensions and inconsistencies in how American modernism has been defined In this way the book shines a necessary light on modernism s complexity while overturning perceived notions of race and gender in relation to the modernist project and challenging the notion of the white male hero of modern architecture

From Head Shops to Whole Foods Joshua C. Davis,2017-08-08 In the 1960s and 70s a diverse range of storefronts including head shops African American bookstores feminist businesses and organic grocers brought the work of the New Left Black Power feminism environmentalism and other movements into the marketplace Through shared ownership limited growth and democratic workplaces these activist entrepreneurs offered alternatives to conventional profit driven corporate business models By the middle of the 1970s thousands of these enterprises operated across the United States but only a handful survive today Some such as Whole Foods Market have abandoned their quest for collective political change in favor of maximizing profits Vividly portraying the struggles successes and sacrifices of these unlikely entrepreneurs From Head Shops to Whole Foods writes a new history of social movements and capitalism by showing how activists embraced small businesses in a way few historians have considered The book challenges the widespread but mistaken idea that activism and political dissent are inherently antithetical to participation in the marketplace Joshua Clark Davis uncovers the historical roots of contemporary interest in ethical consumption social enterprise buying local and mission driven business while also showing how today s companies have adopted the language but not often the mission of liberation and social change

Connolly,2014-08-25 Many people characterize urban renewal projects and the power of eminent domain as two of the most widely despised and often racist tools for reshaping American cities in the postwar period In A World More Concrete N D B Connolly uses the history of South

Florida to unearth an older and far more complex story Connolly captures nearly eighty years of political and land transactions to reveal how real estate and redevelopment created and preserved metropolitan growth and racial peace under white supremacy Using a materialist approach he offers a long view of capitalism and the color line following much of the money that made land taking and Jim Crow segregation profitable and preferred approaches to governing cities throughout the twentieth century A World More Concrete argues that black and white landlords entrepreneurs and even liberal community leaders used tenements and repeated land dispossession to take advantage of the poor and generate remarkable wealth Through a political culture built on real estate South Florida s landlords and homeowners advanced property rights and white property rights especially at the expense of more inclusive visions of equality For black people and many of their white allies uses of eminent domain helped to harden class and color lines Yet for many reformers confiscating certain kinds of real estate through eminent domain also promised to help improve housing conditions to undermine the neighborhood influence of powerful slumlords and to open new opportunities for suburban life for black Floridians Concerned more with winners and losers than with heroes and villains A World More Concrete offers a sober assessment of money and power in Jim Crow America It shows how negotiations between powerful real estate interests on both sides of the color line gave racial segregation a remarkable capacity to evolve revealing property owners power to reshape American cities in ways that can still be seen and felt today

Writing/Disciplinarity

Paul Prior, 2013-11-05 Over the past century the explosive growth of scientific technical and cultural disciplines has profoundly affected our daily lives However processes of enculturation in sites such as graduate education that have helped to form these disciplines have received very limited research attention In those sites graduate students write diverse documents including course papers departmental examinations theses and dissertations grant and fellowship applications and disciplinary publications Thus writing is one of the central domains of enculturation an activity through which graduate students and professors display and negotiate disciplinary knowledge genres identities and institutional contexts This volume explores this intersection of writing and disciplinary enculturation through a series of ethnographic case studies These case studies provide the most thorough descriptions available today of the lived experience of graduate seminars combining analysis of classroom talk students texts and professor s written responses institutional contexts students representations of their writing and its contexts and professors representations of their tasks and their students Given the complexities that the ethnographic data displayed the author found that conventional notions of writing as a process of transcription and of disciplines as unified discourse communities were inadequate As such this book also offers an in depth exploration of sociohistoric theory in relation to writing and disciplinary enculturation Specific case studies introduce apply and further elaborate notions of writing as literate activity authorship as mediated by other people and artifacts classroom tasks as speech genres enculturation as the interplay of authoritative and internally persuasive discourses and disciplinarity as a deeply heterogeneous laminated and dialogic process This blend of research and theory should be of interest to scholars and students in such fields as writing studies rhetoric writing across the curriculum applied linguistics English for academic purposes science and technology studies higher education and the ethnography of communication
