link below so that you can jump directly to your favorite interest. However, I'd recommend reading the whole article for a rounded understanding of the relationship between glycemic index and the concept of a low glycemic diet. It was created in the early 1980s by Dr. David Jenkins at the Department of Nutritional Science at the University of Toronto. It was originally designed as a way of helping to manage blood sugar levels, but recently it has been used by those who want to live healthier lifestyles. Unlike the GI, a measurement of the effect of certain carbohydrate-containing foods on your blood sugar, the Glycemic Index (GI) diet uses a ranking system to determine the healthiness of the food you eat based on its glucose level. The GI diet is a low-carb diet that will help you regulate your weight and blood sugar levels, reducing all the extreme mood fluctuations. It was created by measuring the changes in blood sugar that occurred after eating a high-carb diet and then ranking them based on the effect.
