A Life in Balkan Archaeology John Chapman, 2021-10-13 This memoir is not really about research questions or main conclusions It tells the story of a boy growing up in Plymouth Devon getting excited about archaeology after visits to mainland Greece and Crete trying to get into Greek archaeology and relocating northwards into the Balkans where he spent a career in prehistoric research The chapters alternate between museum university experiences and my major research projects The experiences of working in that part of the world as the Third Balkan War was starting were dramatic and a history style chapter is devoted to these beginnings The Balkan prehistoric club in the west is a very small and select group so there is an intrinsic interest about how westerners did their archaeology there and how they interacted with local colleagues There is also a sense of a colonial relationship between westerners knowledgeable about theory and method with well stocked libraries and large research grants and easterners with little of the above On a basic level the memoir presents stories with implications for east west relationships that will soon disappear from living memory The ways that research projects originated and developed are strongly featured and there is a fund of anecdotes about prehistorians living and dead The publication of this memoir records those fragments of the discipline s history that are in danger of being lost forever But my life story is not erased from this account which is not an anthropological work but rather a participant account with a modicum of relevant personal details The book providing the archaeological results is the publication Forging identities in the prehistory of Old Europe Dividuals individuals and communities 7000 3000 BC a synthesis of academic research in
