Sciences Within the Weather Enterprise National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Board on Human-Systems Integration, Board on Environmental Change and Society, Board on Atmospheric Sciences and Climate, Committee on Advancing Social and Behavioral Science Research and Application Within the Weather Enterprise, 2018-02-05 Our ability to observe and forecast severe weather events has improved markedly over the past few decades. Forecasts of snow and ice storms, hurricanes and storm surge, extreme heat and other severe weather events are made with greater accuracy, geographic specificity and lead time to allow people and communities to take appropriate protective measures. Yet hazardous weather continues to cause loss of life and result in other preventable social costs. There is growing recognition that a host of social and behavioral factors affect how we prepare for, observe, predict, respond to and are impacted by weather hazards. For example, an individual's response to a severe weather event may depend on their understanding of the forecast, prior experience with severe weather, concerns about their other family members or property, their capacity to take the recommended protective actions and numerous other factors. Indeed, it is these factors that can determine whether or not a potential hazard becomes an actual disaster. Thus, it is essential to bring to bear expertise in the social and behavioral sciences (SBS) including disciplines such as anthropology, communication, demography, economics, geography, political science, psychology and sociology to understand how people's knowledge, experiences, perceptions and attitudes shape their responses to weather risks and to understand how human cognitive and social dynamics affect the forecast process itself. Integrating Social and Behavioral Sciences Within the Weather Enterprise explores and provides guidance on the challenges of integrating social and behavioral sciences within the weather enterprise. It assesses current SBS activities, describes the potential value of improved integration of SBS and barriers that impede this integration, develops a research agenda and identifies infrastructural and institutional arrangements for successfully pursuing SBS weather research and the transfer of relevant findings to operational settings.

Weather on the Air Robert Henson, 2013-01-05 From low humor to high drama, TV weather reporting has encompassed an enormous range of styles and approaches, triggering chuckles, infuriating the masses and at times even saving lives. In Weather on the Air, meteorologist and science journalist Robert Henson covers it all: the people, technology, science and show business that combine to deliver the weather to the public each day. Featuring the long-term drive to professionalize weathercasting, the complex relations between government and private forecasters and the effects of climate change, science and the Internet on today's broadcasts. With dozens of photos and anecdotes illuminating the many forces that have shaped weather broadcasts over the years, this engaging study will be an invaluable tool for students of broadcast meteorology and mass communication and an entertaining read for anyone fascinated by the public face of weather. Mariners Weather Log, 1981 Extreme Weather and Global Media Julia Leyda, Diane Negra, 2015-06-05 In the two decades bracketing the turn of the millennium, large-scale weather disasters have been inevitably constructed as media events. As such, they challenge the meaning of concepts such as identity and citizenship for both locally affected populations and widespread spectator communities This timely collection pinpoints the features of an often overlooked yet rapidly expanding category of global media and analyzes both its forms and functions Specifically contributors argue that the intense promotion and consumption of extreme weather events takes up the slack for the public conversations society is not having about the environment and the feeling of powerlessness that accompanies the realization that anthropogenic climate change has now reached a point of no return Incorporating a range of case studies of extreme weather mediation in India the UK Germany Sweden the US and Japan and exploring recent and ongoing disasters such as Superstorm Sandy the Fukushima nuclear crisis flooding in Germany and heat waves in the UK Extreme Weather and Global Media generates valuable inquiry into the representational and social characteristics of the new culture of extreme weather
