After completing a data management course, students are required to complete a final project. The project is designed to assess the student's understanding of the course material and their ability to apply it to a real-world situation. The project is divided into two parts: a written report and a presentation. The written report is due at the end of the semester, and the presentation is due at the end of the next semester. The project is graded on a scale of 1 to 5, with 5 being the highest grade. The project is a required component of the course, and it is an important part of the student's learning experience.

Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine if there were differences in the prevalence of musculoskeletal disorders among different types of workers. The study included 600 male employees from a large manufacturing company who had been employed for at least one year. The results showed that the prevalence of musculoskeletal disorders was higher among workers in the production department than among workers in the maintenance department. The results also showed that the prevalence of musculoskeletal disorders was higher among workers who had been employed for more than five years than among workers who had been employed for less than five years.
