Becoming Biliterate Bertha Perez, 2003-10-03 This book describes the development process and dynamics of change in the course of implementing a two way bilingual immersion education program in two school communities The focus is on the language and literacy learning of elementary school students and on how it is influenced by parents teachers and policymakers Perez provides rich highly detailed descriptions both quantitative and qualitative of the change process at the two schools involved including student language and achievement data for five years of program implementation that were used to test the basic two way bilingual theory the specific school interventions and the particular classroom instructional practices The contribution of Becoming Biliterate A Study of Two Way Bilingual Immersion Education is to provide a comprehensive description of contextual and instructional factors that might help or hinder the attainment of successful literacy and student outcomes in both languages The study has broad theoretical policy and practical instructional relevance for the many other U S school districts with large student populations of non native speakers of English This volume is highly relevant for researchers teacher educators and graduate students in bilingual and ESL education language policy linguistics and language education and as a text for master s and doctoral level classes in these areas

Bilingual Competence and Bilingual Proficiency in Child Development Norbert Francis, 2011-11-18 A study of first and second language development in an indigenous community with implications for broader linguistic and cognitive issues When two or more languages are part of a child s world we are presented with a rich opportunity to learn something about language in general and about how the mind works In this book Norbert Francis examines the development of bilingual proficiency and the different kinds of competence that come together in making up its component parts In particular he explores problems of language ability when children use two languages for tasks related to schooling especially in learning how to read and write He considers both broader research issues and findings from an ongoing investigation of child bilingualism in an indigenous language speaking community in Mexico This special sociolinguistic context allows for a unique perspective on some of the central themes of bilingualism research today including the distinction between competence and proficiency modularity and the Poverty of Stimulus problem Francis proposes that competence knowledge should be considered as an integral component of proficiency ability rather than something separate and apart arguing that this approach allows for a more inclusive assessment of research findings from diverse fields of study The bilingual indigenous language project illustrates how the concepts of modularity and the competence proficiency distinction in particular might be applied to problems of language learning and literacy Few investigations of indigenous language and culture approach bilingual research problems from a cognitive science perspective By suggesting connections to broader cognitive and linguistic issues Francis points the way to further research along these lines

Taught a Lesson Michael Stivers, 2023-10-27 Michael Stivers was a kindergarten teacher in a school of children with very few behavior problems Then he lost most of the use of his left arm He could not drive to his school without fear of an accident so he searched for a neighboring school The school he found was close to his home The number of challenging students was much greater To meet those challenges Michael would have to draw on his decades of teaching elementary preschool and special education students
