However, the industry has been very resistant to make the public more involved in the decision-making process. The original industry and public feedback is the only way you can get your industry to process their feedback correctly.

Table 1

This system is designed to capture the essential (200–2000 Hz) content of the voice utterance, to represent this only in a few (often) principal components. This multi-dimensional (although the number may be reduced to any appropriate) representation is then converted to a single value (the first principal component) by using principal components analysis (PCA) (see below). This is believed that the first component is the best feature for representing the speech signal. When the system is used in the real-time environment, the system will perform a similar process to the first component to produce the first principal component. To facilitate the use of this first component as being the single component in a speech act, the first component is used.
