Formulated Theory Of Personality Description Of The Theory:

Enhancing Clinical Case Formulation Patrick Ryan, 2019-12-05 Clinical formulation lies at the heart of how mental health professionals understand psychological distress. It is the application of a framework that cohesively integrates scientific knowledge with the symptoms of distress. In essence, it is the creation of order to what is often experienced as disorder. The aim of this book is to bring awareness to the theoretical and practical opportunities for mental health professionals that exists by using atypical information when adapting typical formulation models. Each chapter reflects some variation in how formulation is defined, conceptualised, and practiced by using information that regularly materializes from professional encounters but often is omitted from the formulation of a particular presenting problem. Chapters on diet and exercise, sleep, spirituality, sexuality, and meaning making highlight how approaches to formulation can be extended to provide additional opportunities for intervention for the client and practitioner. A professional encounter orientated in the manner proposed will generate a type of formulation that will raise interesting and testable hypotheses that can assist in understanding stuck points in therapy, difficulties within the therapeutic relationship, low motivation, or inability to engage in particular approaches, and will assist in devising person-specific mental health interventions. This book will appeal to clinical psychologists and psychotherapists in practice and training.

Case Formulation for Personality Disorders Ueli Kramer, 2019-01-22 Case Formulation for Personality Disorders provides clinical guidance on how to build effective treatment plans for patients presenting with personality disorders. Anchored within a disorder-specific approach, the present volume reviews the evidence base of case formulation methodology. The book takes an integrative and differentiated approach to case formulation with multiple methods of case formulation, all specifically adapted to the psychotherapy of personality disorders, illustrated with many case examples. Provides individualized assessment and measurement in practice. Uses 18 case formulation methods for treating personality disorders. Identifies evidence-based effective treatment. Includes real-life case examples.

The Routledge International Handbook of Positioning Theory Mary B. McVee, Luk Van Langenhove, Cynthia H. Brock, Bo Allesøe Christensen, 2024-06-01 This handbook is the first of its kind to explore Positioning Theory. Taking inspiration from the groundwork set by Rom Harré and collaborators such as Bronwyn Davies, Fathali Moghaddam, Luk Van Langenhove, and others, the book explores the emergence, historical context, and disciplinary applications of Positioning Theory and its basic precepts as a social psychological theory. This volume encompasses over 20 chapters across four sections, assimilating cross-disciplinary insights that try to understand the theoretical underpinnings, methodological applications, and contemporary relevance of Positioning Theory. Part 1 explores the movement of scholarly figures and their numerous works on the subject. It discusses the foundational origins and the historical contexts of the existing theories on positioning and new directions for scholarship. Part 2 examines the methodological and narrative investigations used for data analysis in positioning research, navigating through the epistemological orientations and theoretical landscapes of Positioning Theory Part 3 explores numerous applications across disciplines to consider the reach and influence of positioning within and across multiple disciplines Lastly the authors contemplate the future directions for Positioning Theory Featuring researchers from leading research institutions from across the globe the book is important reading for scholars interested in positioning and Positioning Theory We recommend this handbook for graduate level courses in social psychology communication discourse studies and related disciplines

Formulations of Classical and Quantum Dynamical Theory, 2014-05-14 In this book we study theoretical and practical aspects of computing methods for mathematical modelling of nonlinear systems A number of computing techniques are considered such as methods of operator approximation with any given accuracy operator interpolation techniques including a non Lagrange interpolation methods of system representation subject to constraints associated with concepts of causality memory and stationarity methods of system representation with an accuracy that is the best within a given class of models methods of covariance matrix estimation methods for low rank matrix approximations hybrid methods based on a combination of iterative procedures and best operator approximation and methods for information compression and filtering under condition that a filter model should satisfy restrictions associated with causality and different types of memory As a result the book represents a blend of new methods in general computational analysis and specific but also generic techniques for study of systems theory and its particular branches such as optimal filtering and information compression Best operator approximation Non Lagrange interpolation Generic Karhunen Loeve transform Generalised low rank matrix approximation Optimal data compression Optimal nonlinear filtering Fairbairn's Object Relations Theory in the Clinical Setting David P. Celani, 2010 W R D Fairbairn 1889 1964 challenged the dominance of Freud's drive theory with a psychoanalytic theory based on the internalization of human relationships Fairbairn assumed that the unconscious develops in childhood and contains dissociated memories of parental neglect insensitivity and outright abuse that are impossible for the children to tolerate consciously In Fairbairn's model these dissociated memories protect developing children from recognizing how badly they are being treated and allow them to remain attached even to physically abusive parents Attachment is paramount in Fairbairn's model as he recognized that children are absolutely and unconditionally dependent on their parents Kidnapped children who remain attached to their abusive captors despite opportunities to escape illustrate this intense dependency even into adolescence At the heart of Fairbairn's model is a structural theory that organizes actual relational events into three self and object pairs one conscious pair the central ego which relates exclusively to the ideal object in the external world and two mostly unconscious pairs the child's antilibidinal ego which relates exclusively to the rejecting parts of the object and the child's libidinal ego which relates exclusively to the exciting parts of the object The two dissociated self and object pairs remain in the unconscious but can emerge and suddenly take over the individual's central ego When they emerge the other is misperceived as either an exciting or a rejecting object thus turning these internal structures into a source of transferences and reenactments Fairbairn's central defense mechanism splitting is the fast shift from central ego dominance to either the libidinal ego or the antilibidinal ego a near perfect model of the borderline personality disorder In this book David Celani reviews Fairbairn's five foundational papers and outlines their application in the clinical setting. He discusses the four unconscious structures and offers the clinician concrete suggestions on how to recognize and respond to them effectively in the heat of the clinical interview. Incorporating decades of experience into his analysis, Celani emphasizes the internalization of the therapist as a new good object and devotes entire sections to the treatment of histrionic, obsessive, and borderline personality disorders.
