Sport, Recreation and Green Space in the European City Peter Clark, Marjaana Niemi, Jari Niemelä, 2009-12-31

Green space has become a major issue in European cities in recent years as a result of enhanced environmental awareness urban marketing planning policy and growing population densities Up to now however the subject of sports areas and grounds has attracted little research despite the fact that since the First World War such public and private areas from football pitches and running tracks to golf courses and tennis courts have often comprised one of the most important and extensive types of green space in the European city This book presents a pioneering comparative and multidisciplinary analysis of the development use and impact of sports areas in the European city from the start of the 20th century up to the present time Employing a range of historical spatial and ecological approaches it examines when and why sports areas evolved the contribution of municipalities and the private sector the role of gender and class and the impact on the urban landscape and ecology Chapters cover urban sports areas in Finland Britain the Netherlands Germany and Italy illustrating the contrasts in the provision of green space across Europe

Golfonomics Stephen Shmanske, 2004-03-15 This book presents Stephen Shmanske's innovative research combining two of his passions golf and economics He develops two themes the use of economics to explore institutional aspects of the business side of golf and the use of golf statistics to shed light on several vexing issues in economics These two themes are addressed in two settings the economics of golf course management and the economics of professional golf Examples from golf course management are covered in separate chapters on golf cart usage golf course maintenance and the problem of slow play Examples from professional golf include the causal relationships from practice to skill to earnings the tournament compensation model and the measurement of gender discrimination
