Towards an embodied science of intersubjectivity: Widening the scope of social understanding research Ezequiel Di Paolo, Hanne De Jaegher, 2015-06-16 An important amount of research effort in psychology and neuroscience over the past decades has focused on the problem of social cognition This problem is understood as how we figure out other minds relying only on indirect manifestations of other people's intentional states which are assumed to be hidden private and internal Research on this question has mostly investigated how individual cognitive mechanisms achieve this task A shift in the internalist assumptions regarding intentional states has expanded the research focus with hypotheses that explore the role of interactive phenomena and interpersonal histories and their implications for understanding individual cognitive processes This interactive expansion of the conceptual and methodological toolkit for investigating social cognition we now propose can be followed by an expansion into wider and deeply related research questions beyond but including that of social cognition narrowly construed Our social lives are populated by different kinds of cognitive and affective phenomena that are related to but not exhausted by the question of how we figure out other minds These phenomena include acting and perceiving together verbal and non verbal engagement experiences of disconnection management of relations in a group joint meaning making intimacy trust conflict negotiation asymmetric relations material mediation of social interaction collective action contextual engagement with socio cultural norms structures and roles etc These phenomena are often characterized by a strong participation by the cognitive agent in contrast with the spectatorial stance typical of social cognition research We use the broader notion of embodied intersubjectivity to refer to this wider set of phenomena This Research Topic aims to investigate relations between these different issues to help lay strong foundations for a science of intersubjectivity the social mind writ large To contribute to this goal we encouraged contributions in psychology neuroscience psychopathology philosophy and cognitive science that address this wider scope of intersubjectivity by extending the range of explanatory factors from purely individual to interactive from observational to participatory

William James's Pluralism Wayne Viney, 2022-05-05 William James's Pluralism An Antidote for Contemporary Extremism and Absolutism explores extremism and the related problem of absolutism in the context of the psychology and philosophy of William James Extremist and absolutist views were topical in James's day especially around the time of the Civil War but they are no less common in these early years of the 21st century James argued that the love of singularities such as belief in one God one method one political system or one value system contributes to extremist even violent mentalities In this book James's views on singular versus pluralistic perspectives are explored and then applied to contemporary practical issues such as abortion birth control and death with dignity legislation These perspectives are furthermore applied to more theoretical issues such as causality values and methods or ways of investigating the world Within William James's Pluralism these theories are investigated in a comprehensive philosophical and psychological examination of the human experience Written in a nontechnical manner to appeal to the general public just as William James hoped for his pluralistic philosophy this book is additionally of considerable interest to academics and students across many fields such as psychology philosophy history and sociology

Constructing Objectivity: Emotions in Legal Decision-making Stina Bergman Blix, Sharyn Lee-Anne Roach Anleu, Mojca M. Plesnicar, Louise Victoria

Johansen, 2025-08-28 The field of Law and Emotion originated in discussions that disputed the bifurcation of emotion and law In the past decade these discussions have inspired socio legal research on the dynamic and social dimensions of court work The field has grown exponentially in diverse disciplines such as sociology law philosophy anthropology and criminology At the core of legal decision making lies the fundamental principles of objectivity impartiality and independence The Research Topic Constructing Objectivity Emotions in Legal Decision making addresses the dialectical processes of translating these principles into everyday judicial practice across a wide range of legal systems Building on empirical research including observations interviews shadowing vignettes and workshops with legal professionals this collection engages with objectivity in the making It addresses such questions as What role does court architecture and material objects play in the emotional dynamic of the legal procedure How do judges manage victims emotional statements or evaluate their credibility How do judges make independent decisions in a collective setting What role does extra legal lay specialist expertise play in co constructing legal knowledge of relevance to decision making How do judges embrace the idea of objectivity How is all this influenced by the growing digitalization of courts and hearings In so doing it investigates the complexity of objectivity as an ideal a judicial value requiring performance promoting courtroom atmosphere and as sometimes feigned
