2.1 Read the passage below and answer the questions that follow.

Peat lands are special wetlands that play a very important role in ecology. A peat land, of approximately 5 000 years old, near Mufurang is almost destroyed because of excessive extraction of water from the nearby Malopo river. The water is extracted for human consumption.

Peat lands like the one near Malling is exceptional and play an important role in storing water as well as preventing climate changes.

Dr. Paul-Louis Dranding said that carbon that is "held" or "stored" by peat lands combats climate change because it decreases the amount of carbon in the atmosphere.

Peat lands trap about one third of the world's carbon. Approximately 50% of wetlands worldwide are peat lands. However in South Africa about 10% of the wetlands are peat lands.

Grundling explained that peat lands can hold about 1 000 times its own mass in water. This replenishes the water table and is the source that keeps streams flowing. The "sponge effect" of the peat also makes it possible to store water that is then released during the seasons.

Dr. Grunwald said that it might be too late to restore the peat land near Malling, but it might be possible to restore some parts of it if more water is supplied to this peat land.

The result of this destruction is depletion of the water table. The habitat of numerous fish and bird species that lived in the canal bed was also destroyed.

Deep Violence Joanna Bourke, 2015-03-01 2014 marks the 100th anniversary of the declaration of the First World War and with it comes a deluge of books documentaries feature films and radio programs We will hear a great deal about the horror of the battlefield Bourke acknowledges wider truths war is unending and violence is deeply entrenched in our society But it doesn't have to be this way This book equips readers with an understanding of the history culture and politics of warfare in order to interrogate and resist an increasingly violent world Wounding the World investigates the ways that violence and war have become internalized in contemporary human consciousness in everything from the way we speak to the way our children play with one another to the way that we ascribe social characteristics to our guns and other weapons With a remarkable depth of insight Bourke argues for a radical overhaul of our collective stance towards militarism from one that simply aims to reduce violence against people to one that would eradicate all violence Her message is judicious and vital knowledge about weapons and the violence they bring has simply become too important to cast aside or leave to the experts
