

Unit 8: Study guide – Heart, Blood Vessels, and Circulation of blood

SECTION 1 – The Heart

The heart consists of four pumps – two receive blood from the lungs, the other pumps it out into the body. The pulmonary and aortic valves prevent backflow of blood. The ventricles contract and pump blood out to the lungs and the rest of the body respectively. The heart is surrounded by a double-walled sac called the pericardium.

The four chambers of the heart are the right and left atria and ventricles. The atria are the upper chambers and the ventricles are the lower chambers. The right atrium receives blood from the body and the right ventricle pumps it to the lungs. The left atrium receives blood from the lungs and the left ventricle pumps it to the rest of the body. The heart is surrounded by a double-walled sac called the pericardium.

The heart is divided into four chambers by two septa. The right atrium and ventricle are on the right side of the heart and the left atrium and ventricle are on the left side. The right atrium receives blood from the body and the right ventricle pumps it to the lungs. The left atrium receives blood from the lungs and the left ventricle pumps it to the rest of the body. The heart is surrounded by a double-walled sac called the pericardium. The heart is also surrounded by a network of blood vessels called the coronary arteries and veins. The coronary arteries supply the heart with oxygenated blood and the coronary veins carry away deoxygenated blood. The heart is also surrounded by a network of lymphatic vessels called the lymphatic system.
