

Safe Manual Handling

Introduction

LEGISLATION

More than a 1/3 of injuries reported to the Health and Safety Executive are from lifting, lowering, pushing, pulling, carrying, or moving. These injuries are costly to the employer and the employee. The Manual Handling Operations Regulations 1992 (amended 2002) require any employer whose work involves lifting, lowering, or moving a load to take steps to reduce the number of accidents and injuries from these activities.

TYPES OF INJURY

The back is a source of trouble with a lot depending on its condition. There are 3 types of injuries which can occur to the spine. These are:

1. Strain, such as sprains and tears of the discs and ligaments, which support the spine. This is a common condition in most jobs which involve heavy or awkward loads.
2. Sprain, such as sprains and tears of the ligaments and discs which support the spine.
3. Fracture, such as broken bones and dislocations of the spine.

The types of injury that occur are:

Anywhere in the musculo-skeletal system can be injured.

Risk Assessment 1

The purpose of a risk assessment is to:

1. Identify hazardous activities or tasks in the work environment, such as the conditions, the nature of the work, the equipment, the process, or the nature of the work environment, and to decide if further information or action is necessary.
2. Identify the person carrying out the assessment should be:

1. People who are responsible for health and safety in the workplace (e.g. the person carrying out the assessment should be responsible for health and safety in the workplace).
2. People who are responsible for health and safety in the workplace (e.g. the person carrying out the assessment should be responsible for health and safety in the workplace).
3. People who are responsible for health and safety in the workplace (e.g. the person carrying out the assessment should be responsible for health and safety in the workplace).

The assessment should be written down and the recommendations must be implemented immediately.
