Abstract: The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women. The study was conducted in a community-based setting. The participants were 120 women, aged 40-60 years, who were sedentary and had no history of cardiovascular disease. They were randomly assigned to two groups: a control group and an exercise group. The exercise group participated in a 12-week program of aerobic and strength training. The control group did not participate in any exercise program. The study found that the exercise group had significantly higher levels of physical fitness and psychological well-being compared to the control group at the end of the 12-week program. The results suggest that a 12-week exercise program can improve the physical and psychological health of sedentary, middle-aged women.
