There is a description opportunity, even and then technology or tactics, making something (such as technology to make goods during WWII), even in some examples of technology or tactics and their impact on American production during the development of the United States.

Vocabulary
Opportunity Cost	An opportunity cost is what you give up one thing in order to accomplish or get something else. For example, in World War II Americans were rationed on many products including food, rubber and gasoline, so that the military would have all of the supplies needed to win the war.
Dictator	A dictator is the ruler of a country who has complete authority. The U.S. has a president who most people see as in charge, but his power is actually shared with Congress and the Supreme Court. A dictator, such as Adolf Hitler, controls everything in their country.
Blitzkrieg	Blitzkrieg was Hitler's plan for waging war. It was known as "lightning war." His plan was to attack countries suddenly and take them over before they were able to defend themselves.
Internment Camp	In the U.S. during WWII, many Japanese Americans were forced to live in internment camps because the government was afraid some of them might be spies helping Japan. For several years they were forced to live in these camps.
Allies	Allies usually refers to "buddies," or countries that agree to help each other. In World War II one group of countries that agreed to help each other became known as the "Allied Powers," while the other group of countries that agreed to help each other became known as the "Axis Powers." The main Allied Powers were the U.S., Great Britain, Russia and France (when they got free from Germany).
Axis Powers	The axis powers were considered the bad guys of the aggression in World War II. They were the countries that allied together and tried to take over the world. The axis powers were Germany, Italy and Japan, who were led by Hitler, Mussolini and Hirohito.
Concentration Camp	Adolf Hitler started concentration camps in the late 1930's. This is where he sent everyone he disliked. Some of these camps required the prisoners next door to work as slaves, while they were being starved. Other camps, such as Auschwitz became known as death camps. The prisoners were basically sent there to be killed.
Nazi	The Nazis were a political party in Germany. In the U.S. our main political parties are the Democrats and the Republicans. Adolf Hitler was actually a very good public speaker and became the popular leader of the Nazi political party in the early 1930's. The Nazis became responsible for the killing of millions of people when they got in power.
Aggression	Aggression is a word that describes someone being aggressive and usually involves them attacking. For example, Germany showed aggression during WWII when they invaded and conquered several other countries. Japan also showed aggression by attacking China and islands in the Pacific.
