This article starts off by explaining how dress codes should be helpful to schools, but then gives the examples of how students are treated unfairly due to them. It also explains the types of consequences students face when going against the rules. Later, it goes more into how uniforms could be an easy solution to all of the dress code problems.

- "Some teachers and educational leaders believe that strict dress codes or school uniform policies can reduce bullying and peer pressure in school (Brunzma, 2004)." (Page 1, paragraph 2)
- Uniforms can reduce gang related activity
- Uniforms = preparing students for work and adult life
- "Dress codes may have the intention of promoting consistent treatment for all, but they are by no means equitable" (page 1, paragraph 2)
- Did a study about dress codes in 14 different schools (only 9 gave their information publicly) in a Midwestern State !
- "In fact, African American girls are the most targeted group for dress code violations (Morris, 2016)." (Page 16, paragraph 1).
- Page 16 paragraph 2 – the whole thing is important -
- "The Roanoke County School District worked with a committee of parents, teachers, and students to create an inclusive, gender-neutral dress code that took effect during the 2019–2020 school year. It requires shirts to go from armpit to armpit and "down to approximately 3 to 4 inches in length on the upper thighs" (Adkins, 2019, para. 5). All shirts are required to have straps (Adkins, 2019). The old dress code was acknowledged to have sexist language, explicitly banning shirts with spaghetti straps, but the new version is gender neutral. It does not penalize female students more than males. All students are expected to have the same amount of coverage and are given the freedom to execute this coverage in a way that works for them." ----- This dress code ensures that male and female students are held to the same standards. The rules aren't "no crop tops" (which singles out females because men do not wear those). Instead, they give you measurements on how short your shirt and pants can be, which makes it more neutral.
- Dress codes teach students to follow a code of conduct. Good to learn in high school for future jobs.
