On Autobiographical Memory Anita Kasabova, 2009-05-27 The aim of this book is to provide an account of autobiographical memory the memory of episodes in the subject's autobiography and to answer the following questions what happens when we remember something Why do we remember some things rather than others The main assumptions in this book are that autobiographical memory is an active structure of a representational nature and that autobiographical memory is a construct of the imagination enabled by a semantic principle the ground consequence relation Anita Kasabova reconstructs the epistemological accounts of memory by the Prague philosopher and mathematician Bernard Bolzano and the Prague physiologist Ewald Hering as well as the phenomenological accounts by Edmund Husserl and Roman Ingarden and discusses various accounts put forward within analytic philosophy She examines the trace theory and its relation to the phenomenology of autobiographical memory and the different temporal perspectives that characterize this form of memory Kasabova formulates a philosophical explication of how autobiographical memory works dealing with issues such as what are the defining features of autobiographical memory how is it structured and how does it function what is a recollection and what are the necessary and for the most part sufficient conditions for a recollection to occur Kasabova argues that such conditions are a sense of self and a sense of connectedness of the self that is semantic rather than causal the subject's sense of ownership of past experiences and the capacity of imagination for mental time travel and thinking about past episodes you have to be able to produce representations not bound to the current situation It is argued that access to the subject's personal past cannot occur otherwise than by construction in imagination In order to reproduce a past experience in the present imagination is necessary for representing a past episode as if it were present Other necessary conditions for autobiographical memory are time awareness a continuous temporal reference frame a successive temporal order and the capacity to refer back to previous positions in time Finally semantic relations of part whole and ground consequence are crucial for explaining autobiographical memory It is argued that the part whole relation is the principle of the memory trace and that the grounding relation coordinates the subject's perspective on past episodes in recollective statements Kasabova argues that autobiographical memory is basically semantic as it is grounded by and constructed through a sense making relation expressed by the explanatory conjunct because we recall certain experiences or actions rather than other because we are sensitive to the reasons for having experienced it The new book by Anita Kasabova fills a gap between traditional philosophical armchair speculations about memory and contemporary cognitive theories which have grown out of extensive experimental research The book's main idea that autobiographical memory is not a mere recollection but rather an active reconstruction of our past memories is not an entirely new one Anita Kasabova however provides a new take on this idea by revealing that the theories of Bolzano Hering and Husserl not only bear historical significance but properly reconstructed they might be viewed as an important contribution to the contemporary interdisciplinary studies of memory An appreciable achievement of the book is the chosen conceptual framework it makes the idiosyncratic language of Bolzano and Husserl accessible to contemporary cognitive scientists as well as making the recent cognitive theories understandable for the traditional philosophical scholars Even if this were the only achievement of Anita Kasabova and it is not it would represent

her monograph as a book of a great merit for a large community of memory scholars Assoc Prof Lilia Gurova Department of Cognitive Science and Psychology New Bulgarian University

Entrenchment and the Psychology of Language Learning Hans-Jörg Schmid, 2016-12-19 In recent years linguists have increasingly turned to the cognitive sciences to broaden their investigation into the roots and development of language. With the advent of cognitive linguistic usage based and complex adaptive models of language, linguists today are utilizing approaches and insights from cognitive psychology, neuropsychology, social psychology and other related fields. A key result of this interdisciplinary approach is the concept of entrenchment, the ongoing reorganization and adaptation of communicative knowledge. Entrenchment posits that our linguistic knowledge is continuously refreshed and reorganized under the influence of social interactions. It is part of a larger ongoing process of lifelong cognitive reorganization whose course and quality is conditioned by exposure to and use of language and by the application of cognitive abilities and processes to language. This volume enlists more than two dozen experts in the fields of linguistics, psycholinguistics, neurology and cognitive psychology in providing a realistic picture of the psychological and linguistic foundations of language. Contributors examine the psychological foundations of linguistic entrenchment processes and the role of entrenchment in first language acquisition, second language learning and language attrition. Critical views of entrenchment and some of its premises and implications are discussed from the perspective of dynamic complexity theory and radical embodied cognitive science.

Audiovisual Translation in Applied Linguistics Laura Incalcaterra McLoughlin, Jennifer Lertola, Noa Talaván, 2020-11-15

In recent years, interest in the application of audiovisual translation (AVT) techniques in language teaching has grown beyond unconnected case studies to create a lively network of methodological intertextuality, cross references, reviews and continuation of previous trials, ultimately defining a recognisable and scalable trend. Whilst the use of AVT as a support in language teaching is not new, this volume looks at a different application of AVT with learners involved in the audiovisual translation process itself performing tasks such as subtitling, dubbing or audio describing. It therefore presents a sample of the current research in this field with particular reference to case studies that either have a large scale or international dimension or can be scaled and replicated in various contexts. It is our hope that these contributions will arouse the interest of publishers of language learning material and other stakeholders and ultimately lead to the mainstreaming of AVT in language education.
