History Education 101 Wilson J. Warren, D. Antonio Cantu, 2008-01-01

Historians and teacher educators nationwide are now engaged in discussions about the importance of history teacher preparation Interest within the history profession about the teaching of K 12 history has increased significantly during the past two decades particularly since the controversy over the National Standards for History's publication. This attention is evident not only in the historical professions' various publications but also in the federal government's multi-million-dollar Teaching American History Program and the No Child Left Behind Act. Professional historians are increasingly committed to improving the teaching of history at the K-12 level through many forms of collaboration. History Education 101's thirteen essays are organized into three sections: context, practice, and new directions. The essays' contributors, tenured faculty who teach history teaching methods courses in colleges and universities throughout the United States, focus on how history education has is and will be taught to new K-12 teachers throughout the United States. Perhaps more than ever, it is critical for Americans to understand the role of higher education in the preparation of future middle and high school history teachers. This book provides important insights for academics in history and education departments as well as other individuals who are concerned with the status and improvement of history teaching in the schools, particularly current and future elementary and secondary teachers and administrators.

Primary School Management: Learning from Experience Eric Briault, 2003-09-02. Issues raised include improving the quality of pupils' learning experience, effective staff organisation, development of policy and management of resources, and establishing good relationships between the head, the school, and the community.

Education Outlook, 1900 Curriculum Practice Martyn Hammersley, Andy Hargreaves, 2012-05-04. When first published, this book was one of the first collections of empirical research in the area of the knowledge transmitted in schools and the responses of students to it. It includes studies of the histories of particular school subjects and of how the knowledge they embody is presented in the classroom. Attention is also given to the effects of gender stereotypes among teachers and pupils, both on pupils' selection of courses to study and on their reactions to particular subjects in the classroom. The other major topic in this collection is the way external examinations shape the nature of the school curriculum and how it is taught. There are studies of how pupils and teachers adapt to the exam system and of how that system and its role in the accountability of schools have changed in recent years. The articles collected here throw into relief important aspects of what is taught in schools and they do this on the basis of a solid foundation of empirical research.
