

Please respond thoughtfully to the following questions. Number 5 is a doozy. Enjoy!

1. What did you think of ~~the experience~~ of making your welcome video?

Intense and nerve wracking. For some reason all of my public speaking skills ~~disappeared~~ whenever I recorded myself individually. Still it was a nice self reflective process that allowed me to understand my background to how I got here.

Describe whether or not considering your literacy backgrounds changed the way you introduced yourself to students.

Yes. You are informing them of your knowledge and experiences, so they understand how you developed, and it gives them an idea of what is expected of them.

Do you think students would react differently to a video than to a traditional welcome letter? or why not?

They would ask if I was a real educator at all, due to the quality of the video itself. On a more serious note, I believe it would make a difference. A paper letter only shows the formal side. A video allows them to empathize and connect on a more personal level, fostering a respect, good for learning.

Describe whether or not a video welcome is something you would consider doing for your class.

I would do it, but I need a lot of practice. It would
