Icom 740 Manual:

The Archaeologist's Manual for Conservation Bradley A. Rodgers, 2007-05-08 This is a Foreword by an archaeologist not a conservator but as Brad Rodgers says Conservation has been steadily pulled from archaeology by the forces of specialization p 3 and he wants to remedy that situation through this manual He sees this work as a call to action for the non professional conservator permitting curators conservators and archaeologists to identify artifacts that need professional attention and allow these professionals to stabilize most artifacts in their own laboratories with minimal intervention using simple non toxic procedures p 5 It is the mission of Brad's manual to bring conservation back into archaeology p 6 The degree of success of that goal depends on the degree to which archaeologists pay attention to and put to use what Brad has to say because as he says The conservationist archaeologist is responsible to make preparation for an artifact's care even before it is excavated and after its storage into the foreseeable future a tremendous responsibility p 10 The manual is a combination of highly technical as well as common sense methods of conserving wood iron and other metals ceramics glass and stone organics and composites a far better guide to artifact conservation than was available to me when I first faced that archaeological challenge at colonial Brunswick Town North Carolina in 1958 a challenge still being faced by archaeologists today The stage of conservation in 1958 is in dramatic contrast to the procedures Brad describes in this manual conservation has indeed made great progress For instance a common procedure then was to heat the artifacts red hot in a furnace a method that made me cringe

Studies in Archaeological Conservation Chris Caple, Vicky Garlick, 2020-12-14 Studies in Archaeological Conservation features a range of case studies that explore the techniques and approaches used in current conservation practice around the world and taken together provide a picture of present practice in some of the world leading museums and heritage organisations Archaeological excavations produce thousands of corroded and degraded fragments of metal ceramic and organic material that are transformed by archaeological conservators into the beautiful and informative objects that fill the cases of museums The knowledge and expertise required to undertake this transformation is demonstrated within this book in a series of 26 fascinating case studies in archaeological conservation and artefact investigation undertaken in laboratories around the world These case studies are contextualised by a detailed introductory chapter which explores the challenges presented by researching and conserving archaeological artefacts and details how the case studies illustrate the current state of the subject Studies in Archaeological Conservation is the first book for over a quarter of a century to show the range and diversity of archaeological conservation in this case through a series of case studies As a result the book will be of great interest to practising conservators conservation students and archaeologists around the world Moody's OTC Unlisted Manual ,1996 Historic and Scientific Displays in Naval Ships and Stations United States.
