A small office, the "Secretariat," is all that was left when London, New Brighton and West Hill in England were destroyed. The office was made ready for the Government's coming, having been ready in July 1917 when war clouds were gathering over the British Isles. The office was then given up to the Government's requisition and it was then that the Government's requisition was made. The office was then given up to the Government's requisition and it was then that the Government's requisition was made. The ships were perhaps not finished and some passengers, just as the steamer Yankee left, such hopes of the return being well served before the end. The "American" was soon pronounced too badly to proceed without being towed, and so both ships got on to Baltimore, after eight days' sail. Repairs were made, and before the end of another week they sailed again. Not until about a hundred leagues beyond Cape Cod, however, the master of the "American," Richard Lee, a merchant from
