Gcse Exam Boards 2002:

Global Perspectives in the Geography Curriculum Alex Standish, 2008-10-07 For geographers across the globe this book provides the arguments for a return to the teaching of geography and why they should reject the politicisation of the subject by education policy makers and politicians Standish's careful critique shows the necessity of a depoliticised geography curriculum the irony of which would be that it would ensure that every child could point to Iraq Iran and Afghanistan on a map Prof Dennis Hayes Oxford Brookes University UK A prescient and critical analysis of the changing face of geography teaching This book deserves to be widely read and debated Alex Standish's book puts current trends in geography teaching in historical and critical context It comprises a forthright and timely defence of geographical education for its own sake Dr Jim Butcher FRSA Department of Sport Science Tourism and Leisure Canterbury Christ Church University Since the early 1990s educational policy makers and some subject leaders have been seeking to fundamentally change the teaching of geography in UK and US schools from a subject which encourages students to explore spatial concepts ideas and skills to a more ethics based subject concerned with the promotion of environmentalism cultural diversity and social justice In this book the new approach is critically examined within a historical and ideological context addressing a number of fundamental questions Should geography be used as a tool for the delivery of citizenship ideals How does this affect the intellectual and moral value of geographical education for young people If the state and teachers are taking more responsibility for the values attitudes and emotional responses of students how will they learn to develop these qualities for themselves If global perspectives shift the focus of education from learning about the outside world to learning about the self what is its vision of social progress and conception of social change This book advocates a return to liberal models of education arguing that the new approach to geography currently being promoted for schools fundamentally undermines the educational value of the subject and the freedom of young people to shape the world in which they live A vital resource for teachers and student teachers alike Global Perspectives in the Geography Curriculum makes a significant contribution to the growing debate about the future direction of the discipline itself

2012 GCSE English results Great Britain: Parliament: House of Commons: Education Committee, 2013-06-11 The 2012 GCSE English results prompted significant controversy which ultimately resulted in an application for judicial review This report sets out the background to these events and identifies lessons to be learned The problems with GCSE English can be traced back to the 2007/09 development phase of the qualification in particular the turbulence which resulted from the shift away from a mostly linear to a modular system combined with a high proportion of controlled assessment and generous marking tolerances Exam board experts raised concerns at the time but these were not acted upon by the regulator the then interim Ofqual Further difficulties arose because of pressures from the school accountability system The problems experienced with GCSE English in 2012 highlighted serious weaknesses in the moderation of speaking and listening with consequences for grade awarding The current status of Ofqual as an independent regulator accountable to Parliament is the right one However the Coalition Government is bringing in wholesale changes to GCSEs and A levels to a tight timetable and at the same time Ofqual must have systems in place The Committee is also concerned that there is a rush towards separate exam systems for England Wales and Northern Ireland without careful reflection on what might be lost or consensus that this is the right thing to do wealth but that part of output on which our continued prosperity depends productivity growth is petering out The traditional scapegoat has been the dearth of worker skills But the worker skills base has never been higher The other explanation is that it is managers who are not giving full value to their employers The way they re making decisions is conferring virtually no upside potential which means they re leaving us wide open for experience poor competitors to step into our experience rich shoes Exactly as Japan did in the 1960s and the so called BRICK countries Brazil Russia India China especially China and Korea are threatening now If creeping uncompetitiveness is not to overtake us from where are the next round of productivity gains to come from Identifying some gaping holes in the way managers are taught to manage this book outlines both the size of the problem and a solution Businesses and other organizations the author says have to substantially raise the quality of their decision making For this to happen they need to be much better experiential learners And for experiential learning to take place companies and other institutions have to better manage their corporate DNA the institution specific experiences otherwise known as Organizational Memory OM which characterizes any organization s ability to perform is the single biggest influence on decision making excellence It is a factor of production that has already been paid for at great expense yet is readily discarded in the backwash of the biggest change in workplace practice for more than a century the actively encouraged flexible labour market Corporate DNA explains why this key component of intellectual capital should be better managed can be better managed and particularly how it can be used to help organizations reduce the pandemic of repeated mistakes rei Assessment Policy Reform Tina Isaacs,Iasonas Lamprianou,2020-05-21 This book highlights the impact of policy and politics on assessment across the globe With contributions from England the Irish Republic Northern Ireland Norway Sweden Switzerland and Wales it explores state led assessment policies and practices that have been the subject of much debate We are experiencing a shift from using assessments especially national tests as measurement instruments designed to produce information to a reliance on tests to influence policy and instruction Once tests become high stakes for students teachers and schools even those that might have been reasonable monitors of educational success can lose dependability and credibility However not all countries assessment policies follow the same model and the contributors explore and analyse a range of different national and supra national assessment policy approaches and perspectives The chapters identify the impetus behind changing assessment policies and practices and analyse ways forward and innovative approaches Readers can draw their own conclusions about which model s can provide the best outcomes for learners surely the most important part of the equation This book was originally published as a special issue of Assessment in Education Principles Policy Practice Perspectives of Female Researchers Sharmina Mawani,Anjoom A. Mukadam,2016-05-05 This fascinating book presents a wide ranging collection of interdisciplinary research on Gujarati identities in India and the diaspora An international group of women researchers from different academic backgrounds has gathered a rich set of data that provide fresh insights and raise many searching questions We find here theoretical and practical perspectives linked to social cultural historical literary and personal concerns that will appeal to and challenge a wide readership A most remarkable volume on which the editors are to be congratulated Professor Ursula King FRSA University of Bristol In this welcome volume women scholars draw out the many facets of identity as it is forged in the minds and bodies and social spiritual and business worlds of Gujaratis in India and the diaspora It is rare indeed to find a book which discusses in such detail the impact of gender and ethnicity on the research process as well as on the lives of those studied Professor Kim Knott University of Lancaster British Music Education Yearbook ,2008
