Vitamin C Alan B. Clemetson,2018-01-10 The factors affecting blood vitamin C levels are described in detail in this series Many factors such as aging smoking infection trauma surgery hemolysis hormone administration heavy metals pregnancy alcohol ionizing radiation and several medicines have been found to cause a disturbance of ascorbic acid metabolism and to reduce blood vitamin C levels Indeed abnormalities of ascorbic acid metabolism due to factors such as smoking occur much more frequently than does dietary vitamin C deficiency today It is now known that low blood vitamin C levels are associated with histaminemia high blood histamine levels and also that ascorbate responsive histaminemia is common in apparently healthy people High blood histamine levels are believed to cause small hemorrhages within the inner walls of the blood vessels and these may lead to the deposition of cholesterol as an aberrant form of wound healing Ascorbic acid not only reduces blood histamine levels but also aids the conversion of cholesterol to bile acids in the liver The clinical pathological and chemical changes observed in ascorbic acid deficiency are discussed in detail Several diseases and disorders associated with low blood vitamin C levels are also described Possible toxic effects resulting from the oxidation of ascorbic acid are noted and reasons for the use of D catechin or other chelating fiber to prevent or minimize the release of ascorbate free radical are detailed An excellent reference for physicians nutritionists and other scientists

Design of Observational Studies Paul R.

Rosenbaum,2009-10-22 An observational study is an empiric investigation of effects caused by treatments when randomized experimentation is unethical or infeasible Observational studies are common in most fields that study the effects of treatments on people including medicine economics epidemiology education psychology political science and sociology The quality and strength of evidence provided by an observational study is determined largely by its design Design of Observational Studies is both an introduction to statistical inference in observational studies and a detailed discussion of the principles that guide the design of observational studies Design of Observational Studies is divided into four parts Chapters 2 3 and 5 of Part I cover concisely in about one hundred pages many of the ideas discussed in Rosenbaum s Observational Studies also published by Springer but in a less technical fashion Part II discusses the practical aspects of using propensity scores and other tools to create a matched comparison that balances many covariates Part II includes a chapter on matching in R In Part III the concept of design sensitivity is used to appraise the relative ability of competing designs to distinguish treatment effects from biases due to unmeasured covariates Part IV discusses planning the analysis of an observational study with particular reference to Sir Ronald Fisher s striking advice for observational studies make your theories elaborate The second edition of his book Observational Studies was published by Springer in 2002

Painting Light in Polio's Shadow: One Artist's Struggles
Sharon White Richardson, 2021-11-23 Landscape painter Sharon Richardson survived polio a viral illness that damages or destroys the nerves essential for moving muscles With no vaccines available epidemics occurred unchecked Also known as infantile paralysis polio left youngsters crippled and dependent on leg braces crutches wheelchairs and in some cases iron lungs to breathe for them Richardson was diagnosed with polio at the age of eight weeks in 1946 In a borrowed car her parents drove their seriously ill infant writhing with painful muscle spasms a hundred miles to Mercy Hospital in Vicksburg Mississippi Enduring and responding to intense physical therapy treatments she overcame the paralysis in her limbs and was released after two months By the 1980s and 1990s Richardson had established an enviable career with work in galleries and collections across the Southeast Fifty six years after recovering from paralysis she succumbed to the muscle weakening effects of post polio syndrome PPS in 2002 Approximately 25 to 40 percent of polio survivors are affected by PPS and there is no treatment She lost muscle strength and control in her legs torso and arms This loss limited walking increased scoliosis and in her right arm severely challenged Richardson's ability to paint Painting Light in Polio's Shadow: One Artist's Struggles reveals how she coped with PPS setbacks and challenges and how these impediments forced her to make radical changes in her private and professional life She was determined to do everything necessary to continue painting which included learning to paint with her nondominant left hand

Theoretical Nursing Afaf Ibrahim Meleis, 2011 An additional assumption was that the processes for theory development were new to nursing and hence nurses in graduate programs learned strategies for advancing knowledge from other disciplines This assumption was debunked with the knowledge that nurses were always engaged in knowledge development driven by their experiences in clinical practice Because of these assumptions most of the early writing about theory development was about outlining strategies that should be used rather than strategies that have already been used in the discipline to develop theories. Theorists themselves did not uncover or adequately discuss ways by which they developed their theories; therefore, the tendency was to describe processes that were based on theories developed in other disciplines, mainly the physical and social sciences. And an implicit assumption was made that there should be a single strategy for theory development, some claiming to begin the process from practice and others believing it should be driven by research.
