The definitive edition of the complete works of the grand dame of American science fiction begins with this volume gathering two novels and her collected stories An original and eerily prophetic writer Octavia E Butler used the conventions of science fiction to explore the dangerous legacy of racism in America in harrowingly personal terms She broke new ground with books that featured complex Black female protagonists I wrote myself in she would later recall establishing herself as one of the pioneers of the Afrofuturist aesthetic In 1995 she became the first science fiction writer to receive a MacArthur Fellowship in recognition of her achievement in creating new aspirations for the genre and for American literature This first volume in the Library of America edition of Butler's collected works opens with her masterpiece Kindred one of the landmark American novels of the last half century Its heroine Dana a Black woman is pulled back and forth between the present and the pre Civil War past where she finds herself enslaved on the plantation of a white ancestor whose life she must save to preserve her own In Fledgling an amnesiac discovers that she is a vampire with a difference she is a new experimental birth with brown skin giving her the fearful ability to go out in sunlight Rounding out the volume are eight short stories and five essays including two never before collected plus a newly researched chronology of Butler's life and career and helpful explanatory notes prepared by scholar Gerry Canavan Butler's friend the writer and editor Nisi Shawl provides an introduction

The Freedom to Remember Angelyn Mitchell, 2002 The Freedom to Remember examines contemporary literary revisions of slavery in the United States by black women writers The narratives at the center of this book include Octavia E Butler's Kindred Sherley Anne Williams's Dessa Rose Toni Morrison's Beloved J California Cooper's Family and Lorene Cary's The Price of a Child Recent studies have investigated these works only from the standpoint of victimization Angelyn Mitchell changes the conceptualization of these narratives focusing on the theme of freedom not slavery defining these works as liberatory narratives These works create a space to problematize the slavery freedom dichotomy from which contemporary black women writers have the safe vantage point to reveal aspects of enslavement that their ancestors could not examine The nineteenth century female emancipatory narrative by contrast was written to aid the cause of abolition by revealing the unspeakable realities of slavery Mitchell shows how the liberatory narrative functions to emancipate its readers from the legacies of slavery in American society by facilitating a deeper discussion of the issues and by making them new through illumination and interrogation

Situating Octavia Butler's Kindred as a Response to the Black Power and Black Studies Movements Noelle Elizabeth Lewis, 2021 There has been great scholarly debate over the genre categorization of Kindred yet there is a lot of missing scholarship regarding the situation of Kindred within the Black Power Movement of the 1970s This piece emphasizes Octavia Butler's placement of Kindred within the greater scope of the Black Power Movement and her reasoning for doing so As an extension of the Black Power Movement the education aspect of the novel is greatly overlooked and the main goal with this work is to emphasize the importance of education within the novel more specifically as it is situated within the Black Studies Movement As education is important Butler utilizes lived experiences within her writing as a means to emphasize that education cannot fully encapsulate a period of time such as slavery Therefore I argue that as Butler has situated Kindred's characters as a response to the Black Power Movement she has also established a relationship between education and experience and how those aspects fuel the main characters within the novel

Freedom Beyond Confinement Michael Ra-Shon Hall, 2021-11-16 Freedom Beyond Confinement examines the cultural history of African American travel and the lasting influence of travel on the imagination particularly of writers of literary fiction and nonfiction Using the paradox of freedom and confinement to frame the ways travel represented both opportunity and restriction for African Americans the book details the intimate connection between travel and imagination from post Reconstruction ca 1877 to the present Analysing a range of sources from the black press and periodicals to literary fiction and nonfiction the book charts the development of critical representation of travel from the foundational press and periodicals which offered African Americans crucial information on travel precautions and possibilities notably during the era of Jim Crow to the woefully understudied literary fiction that would later provide some of the most compelling and lasting portrayals of the freedoms and constraints African Americans associated with travel Travel experiences often challenging and vexed provided the raw data with which writers produced images and ideas meaningful as they learned to navigate negotiate and even challenge racialized and gendered impediments to their mobility In their writings African Americans worked to realize a vision and state of freedom informed by those often difficult experiences of mobility In telling this story the book hopes to center literary fiction in studies of travel where fiction has largely remained absent

Re-forming the Past A Timothy Spaulding, 2005 The slave experience was a defining one in American history and not surprisingly has been a significant and powerful trope in African American literature In Re Forming the Past A Timothy Spaulding examines contemporary revisions of slave narratives that use elements of the fantastic to redefine the historical and literary constructions of American slavery In their rejection of mimetic representation and traditional historiography postmodern slave narratives such as Ishmael Reed's Flight to Canada Octavia Butler's Kindred Toni Morrison's Beloved Charles Johnson's Ox Herding Tale and Jewelle Gomez's The Gilda Stories and Samuel Delaney's Stars in My Pocket like Grains of Sand set out to counter the usual slave narrative's reliance on realism and objectivity by creating alternative histories based on subjective fantastic and non realistic representations of slavery As these texts critique traditional conceptions of history identity and aesthetic form they simultaneously re-invest these concepts with a political agency that harkens back to the original project of the 19th century slave narratives In their rejection of mimetic representation and traditional historiography Spaulding contextualizes postmodern slave narrative By addressing both literary and popular African American texts Re Forming the Past expands discussions of both the African American literary tradition and postmodern culture
