The Deconstruction of Employment as a Political Question Amparo Serrano-Pascual, Maria Jepsen, 2018-07-20 The wide ranging European perspectives brought together in this volume aim to analyse by means of an interdisciplinary approach the numerous implications of a massive shift in the conception of work and the category of worker Changes in the production models economic downturn and increasing digitalisation have triggered a breakdown in the terms and assumptions that previously defined and shaped the notion of employment This has made it more difficult to discuss and problematise issues like vulnerability in employment in such terms as unfairness inequality and inadequate protection Taking the deconstruction of employment as a central idea for theorising the phenomenon of work today this volume explores the emergence of new semantic fields and territories for understanding and regulating employment These new linguistic categories have implications beyond language alone they reformulate the very concept of waged employment including those aspects previously considered intrinsic to the meaning of work and of being a worker along with other closely associated categories such as unemployment self employment and inactivity

Industrial & Labor Relations Review, 1989      From Migrant to Worker Michele Ford, 2019-04-15 What happens when local unions begin to advocate for the rights of temporary migrant workers asks Michele Ford in her sweeping study of seven Asian countries Until recently unions in Hong Kong Japan Malaysia Singapore South Korea Taiwan and Thailand were uniformly hostile towards foreign workers but Ford deftly shows how times and attitudes have begun to change Now she argues NGOs and the Global Union Federations are encouraging local unions to represent and advocate for these peripheral workers and in some cases succeeding From Migrant to Worker builds our understanding of the role the international labor movement and local unions have had in developing a movement for migrant workers labor rights Ford examines the relationship between different kinds of labor movement actors and the constraints imposed on those actors by resource flows contingency and local context Her conclusions show that in countries Hong Kong Malaysia and Thailand where resource flows and local factors give the Global Union Federations more influence local unions have become much more engaged with migrant workers But in countries Japan and Taiwan for example where they have little effect there has been little progress While much has changed Ford forces us to see that labor migration in Asia is still fraught with complications and hardships and that local unions are not always able or willing to act
