TO INVESTIGATE THE PROCESS OF MEIOSIS

Organisms produced by sexual reproduction are truly new organisms. They have different sets of genes from their parents. The gametes formed by meiosis are just for the purpose of sexual reproduction. Gametes cannot grow into another organism until they fuse with another gamete to form a zygote. When the zygote forms, it is genetically unique.

Genetic variation allows a species to have a better chance of adapting to and surviving sudden changes in the environment. No two individuals in a sexually reproducing population are exactly the same. Meiosis during sexual reproduction therefore ensures maximum genetic variation and improved the chances of a species' survival.

Charged Particles in Oncology Marco Durante, Francis A.

Cucinotta, Jay S. Loeffler, 2018-01-31 High energy charged particles represent a cutting edge technique in radiation oncology. Protons and carbon ions are used in several centers all over the world for the treatment of different solid tumors. Typical indications are ocular malignancies, tumors of the base of the skull, hepatocellular carcinomas and various sarcomas. The physical characteristics of the charged particles (Bragg peak) allow sparing of much more normal tissues than it is possible using conventional X rays and for this reason all pediatric tumors are considered eligible for proton therapy. Ions heavier than protons also display special radiobiological characteristics which make them effective against radioresistant and hypoxic tumors. On the other hand, protons and ions with high charge Z and energy HZE particles represent a major risk for human space exploration. The main late effect of radiation exposure is cancer induction and at the moment the dose limits for astronauts are based on cancer mortality risk. The Mars Science Laboratory (MSL) measured the dose on the route to Mars and on the planet's surface suggesting that a human exploration mission will exceed the radiation risk limits. Notwithstanding many studies on carcinogenesis induced by protons and heavy ions, the risk uncertainty remains very high. In this research topic we aim at gathering the experiences and opinions of scientists dealing with high energy charged particles either for cancer treatment or for space radiation protection. Clinical results with protons and heavy ions as well as research in medical physics and pre-clinical radiobiology are reported. In addition, ground-based and spaceflight studies on the effects of space radiation are included in this book. Particularly relevant for space studies are the clinical results on normal tissue complications and second cancers. The eBook nicely demonstrates that particle therapy in oncology and protection of astronauts from space radiation share many common topics and can learn from each other.
