2. People Skills

Working and getting along with the right people, and ensuring they know our value - the 'give and take' principle. Making others feel good. Look at things from others' points of view.

3. Self Management Skills

How we manage ourselves, our attitude, our emotions, our mental and physical health, and our skills with managing our time.

4. Boss Management

Making the boss shine and making sure the boss understands your value.

5. Managing Subordinates

Being able to motivate them and smartly matching tasks with people's interests and abilities.

6. Leadership Skills

Knowing the correct destination and convincing others to come along, and often using out-of-the-box thinking and actions.

7. Marketing Skills

Getting our target customers to notice the usefulness/benefits of our product/services.

8. Productivity/Time Management Skills

Getting more done, the most important tasks done first, using smart to-do lists, cheat sheets, checklists, shortcuts, delegation etc.

9. Career Management Skills

Being relevant and useful in the marketplace, working hard, regularly updating skills (or finding newer areas to be useful in) and finding a work-life balance.

10. Job Searching & Job-interview Skills

Knowing what we want from our career, finding the right places to work, striking a rapport with interviewers, coming off as enthusiastic, interested, and having the right attitude.

11. Creativity & Problem Solving Skills

Thinking outside the box, looking at a problem from multiple angles, and arriving at decisions after considering multiple options.

Gideon Arulmani,Anuradha J. Bakshi,Frederick T. L. Leong,A. G. Watts,2014-02-08 This book is focused on work occupation and career development themes that are fundamental to a wide range of human activities and relevant across all cultures Yet theorizing and model building about this most ubiquitous of human activities from international perspectives have not been vigorous An examination of the literature pertaining to career development counseling and guidance that has developed over the last fifty years reveals theorizing and model building have been largely dominated by Western epistemologies some of the largest workforces in the world are in the developing world Career guidance is rapidly emerging as a strongly felt need in these contexts If more relevant models are to be developed frameworks from other cultures and economies must be recognized as providing constructs that would offer a deeper understanding of career development This does not mean that existing ideas are to be discarded Instead an integrative approach that blends universal principles with particular needs could offer a framework for theorizing research and practice that has wider relevance The central objective of this handbook is to draw the wisdom and experiences of different cultures together to consider both universal and specific principles for career guidance and counseling that are socially and economically relevant to contemporary challenges and issues This book is focused on extending existing concepts to broader contexts as well as introducing new concepts relevant to the discipline of career guidance and counseling Industrial Arts & Vocational Education ,1922 Industrial Arts and Vocational Education ,1926
