Meckler, 2023-08-22 Winner of the Ohio Book Award Finalist of the Malott Prize for Recording Community Activism Can a group of well intentioned people fulfill the promise of racial integration in America In this searing and intimate examination of the ideals and realities of racial integration award winning Washington Post journalist Laura Meckler tells the story of a decades long pursuit in Shaker Heights Ohio and uncovers the roadblocks that have threatened progress time and again in housing in education and in the promise of shared community In the late 1950s Shaker Heights began groundbreaking work that would make it a national model for housing integration And beginning in the seventies it was known as a crown jewel in the national move to racially integrate schools The school district built a reputation for academic excellence and diversity serving as a model for how white and Black Americans can thrive together Meckler herself a product of Shaker Heights takes a deeper look into the place that shaped her investigating its complicated history and its ongoing challenges in order to untangle myth from truth She confronts an enduring and troubling question if Shaker Heights has worked so hard at racial equity why does a racial academic achievement gap persist In telling the stories of the Shakerites who have built and lived in this community Meckler asks What will it take to fulfill the promise of racial integration in America What compromises are people of all races willing to make What does success look like and has Shaker achieved it The result is a complex and masterfully reported portrait of a place that while never perfect has achieved more than most and a road map for communities that seek to do the same Includes black and white images Disability, Society and Assistive Technology

Bodil Ravneberg, Sylvia Söderström, 2017-03-27 The provision of assistive technology is an important individual and collective service of the welfare state The state plays a significant role towards linking users and products and the matching of devices and users is both a science and an art However many people feel it is stigmatising to use individually designed assistive technologies as they often in a subtle way convey discriminating barriers in society The major challenges of assistive technology are thus to reduce social exclusion and marginalisation and importantly to reduce individual risks and societal costs related to non use due to deficiencies in usability aesthetics and design of the technologies This groundbreaking book discusses the relationships among society disability and technology by using different empirical examples e g school everyday life to show why the combination of disability studies and STS studies science technology and society is a fruitful approach to understanding and meeting these challenges The book explores the significance of the technologies for users society and the field identifies challenges to designing adopting and using assistive technologies and points at theoretical challenges in research as well as professional challenges in assistive technology service provision The book also scrutinises the role of assistive technology devices as well as the organisational structure of the assistive technology market in relation to disabled people's lives. This book will be valuable reading for students, academics, teachers and social educators interested in Disability Studies, STS Studies, Product Design, Sociology, Occupational Therapy and Physiotherapy, as well as engineers working in the field of assistive technology. Daily Graphic, I.K. The New Localism Bruce Katz, Jeremy Nowak, 2018-01-09. The New Localism provides a roadmap for change that starts in the communities where most people live and work. In their new book, The New Localism, urban experts Bruce Katz and Jeremy Nowak reveal where the real power to create change lies and how it can be used to address our most serious social, economic and environmental challenges. Power is shifting in the world downward from national governments and states to cities and metropolitan communities horizontally from the public sector to networks of public, private and civic actors and globally along circuits of capital, trade and innovation. This new locus of power, this new localism, is emerging by necessity to solve the grand challenges characteristic of modern societies: economic competitiveness, social inclusion and opportunity, a renewed public life, the challenge of diversity and the imperative of environmental sustainability. Where rising populism on the right and the left exploits the grievances of those left behind in the global economy, new localism has developed as a mechanism to address them head-on. New localism is not a replacement for the vital roles federal governments play; it is the ideal complement to an effective federal government and currently an urgently needed remedy for national dysfunction. In The New Localism, Katz and Nowak tell the stories of the cities that are on the vanguard of problem-solving. Pittsburgh is catalyzing inclusive growth by inventing and deploying new industries and technologies. Indianapolis is governing its city and metropolis through a network of public, private and civic leaders. Copenhagen is using publicly owned assets like their waterfront to spur large-scale redevelopment and finance infrastructure from land sales. Out of these stories emerge new norms of growth, governance and finance and a path toward a more prosperous, sustainable and inclusive society. Katz and Nowak imagine a world in which urban institutions finance the future through smart investments in innovation, infrastructure and children, and urban intermediaries take solutions created in one city and adapt and tailor them to other cities with speed and precision. As Katz and Nowak show us in The New Localism, power now belongs to the problem solvers.
