Gilles Pillet, 2025-05-20 The development of autonomous vehicles requires all the countries of the world to adapt their respective legal systems The scale and complexity of the task is daunting The law is called upon to enable and even encourage the advent of this revolution while guaranteeing a fair allocation of the resulting risks and ensuring public safety What's more the law must rise to this challenge at a time when it is impossible to predict in the medium term the speed at which autonomous vehicles will enter circulation or even their degree of autonomy Adapting civil liability law appears to be the key to success Faced with the peculiarities of autonomous vehicles many concepts on which current liability regimes are based will need rethinking For instance the complex manufacturing of driving systems multiplies the number of potential liable parties and the black box effect associated with the operation of learning AI increases the burden of proof in the event of a failure

Kontakt 2, 2005 Boundary Element Techniques in Computer-Aided Engineering C.A. Brebbia, 2012-12-06 This book constitutes the edited proceedings of the Advanced Studies Institute on Boundary Element Techniques in Computer Aided Engineering held at The Institute of Computational Mechanics, Ashurst Lodge, Southampton, England, from September 19 to 30, 1984. The Institute was held under the auspices of the newly launched Double Jump Programme, which aims to bring together academics and industrial scientists. Consequently, the programme was more industrially based than other NATO ASI meetings, achieving an excellent combination of theoretical and practical aspects of the newly developed Boundary Element Method. In recent years, engineers have become increasingly interested in the application of boundary element techniques for the solution of continuum mechanics problems. The importance of boundary elements is that it combines the advantages of boundary integral equations, i.e. reduction of dimensionality of the problems, possibility of modelling domains extending to infinity, numerical accuracy with the versatility of finite elements, i.e. modelling of arbitrary curved surfaces. Because of this, the technique has been well received by the engineering and scientific communities. Another important advantage of boundary elements stems from its reduction of dimensionality, that is, that the technique requires much less data input than classical finite elements. This makes the method very well suited for Computer Aided Design and, in great part, explains the interest of the engineering profession in the new technique.
