Insurance constitutes a significant part of the financial services sector and is one of the foundations of modern economy and society In the design of tax laws however whether and how to tax insurance is a complex issue that has become particularly controversial in the area of value added tax VAT In the European Union as in most of the world insurance is exempt from VAT but New Zealand and Australia do not follow this practice Given that New Zealand's simple comprehensive goods and services tax GST called the world's purest value added tax and its modified Australian version do not appear to suffer from the shortcomings in efficiency and effectiveness that plague European VAT a comparison of the two systems is in order This book is not only the first comparative in depth study of the treatment of insurance in the two systems but also the first comprehensive legal research devoted to the treatment of insurance in EU VAT published in English Among the underlying issues and topics treated by the two systems covered are the following who has a right to deduct input VAT in relation to supplies inherent in insurance arrangements and to what extent what constitutes a supply of insurance and consideration for such a supply what transactions fall within the scope of the VAT Directive's exemption for insurance and drawing a line between insurance and saving The analysis is grounded in a methodology in which concepts of European VAT are compared with concepts performing the same function in the Australian and New Zealand GST laws The author concludes with proposals for reform in EU VAT in the light of experience in these two major non EU countries Given that it has been proven that exemptions from VAT such as insurance cause a significant number of economic distortions and inefficiencies this study represents a major contribution to a topical debate in European VAT law It will be welcomed by taxation authorities interested policymakers practitioners and scholars not only in Europe but worldwide Toxic Sexual Politics Melina

Packer,2025-01-28 A bold exposé of how the very foundation of toxicology has been contaminated by sexist and racist ideologies The first critical understanding of the field of toxicology from a feminist and antiracist perspective Toxic Sexual Politics asserts that the science of toxicants must be held accountable for the uneven distribution of toxic pollution along racial and sexual lines Drawing upon in depth interviews and extensive ethnographic and archival research including participant observations in toxicology classrooms conferences and laboratories Melina Packer urges environmental health advocates to place toxicant science within its masculinist militarist and eugenicist history Toxic Sexual Politics shows how the founding fathers of U S toxicology were ideologically aligned with the chemical industry inventing a science that could make chemicals safe as opposed to one that could adequately protect planetary health from toxicants hazards While many toxicologists today are critical of the chemical industry they continue to rely on the highly limited tools of toxicology as accurate measures of toxicity as do government regulators the courts and environmental advocates Unlike most critiques of the chemical industry and narratives of environmental health movements Toxic Sexual Politics refuses to take the science at face value By focusing on the sexist racist and ableist biases reinforced by toxicology Packer powerfully argues that this scientific discipline reproduces the very same white supremacist and heterosexist logics that generated environmental injustices in the first place The field of toxicology can explicitly confront chemical corporate power by building from queer feminist anti ableist and antiracist movements for environmental and reproductive justice

Understanding West Africas Ebola Epidemic Ibrahim Abdullah,Ismail Rashid,2017-10-15 From 2013 to 2015 over 11 000 people across West Africa lost their lives to the deadliest outbreak of the Ebola virus in history Crucially this epidemic marked the first time the virus was able to spread beyond rural areas to major cities overturning conventional assumptions about its epidemiology With backgrounds ranging from development to disease control the contributors to this volume some of them based in countries affected by the Ebola epidemic consider the underlying factors that shaped this unprecedented outbreak While championing the heroic efforts of local communities and aid workers in halting the spread of the disease the contributors also reveal deep structural problems in both the countries and humanitarian agencies involved which hampered the efforts to contain the epidemic Alarminglly they show that little has been learned from these events with health provision remaining underfunded and poorly equipped to deal with future outbreaks Such issues they argue reflect the wider challenges we face in tackling epidemic disease in an increasingly interconnected world
