The Nervous System

The nervous system is an extremely complex, highly intricate, and very sensitive structure that occupies the entire body. The main primary cells of the nervous system are neurons, that actually carry and carry information, and glial cells that support the neurons. The nervous system is basically made of two systems: somatic and visceral. Somatic system controls the body's voluntary movements, while visceral system controls the body's involuntary movements.

Central Nervous System

The central nervous system, or CNS, is the part of the nervous system that is located in the brain and spinal cord. It is the most complex part of the nervous system. The brain is the most complex part of the body, and is located within the protective skull. Layers of meninges and cerebrospinal fluid also protect the CNS. The spinal cord is made of many segments, and is located within the vertebral column. It is the main pathway for the transmission of information between the brain and the rest of the body.

Peripheral Nervous System

There are all parts of the nervous system that are not part of the CNS, and they make up the peripheral nervous system, or PNS. The PNS is made up of all sensory neurons that are capable of receiving stimuli, and all motor neurons that are capable of responding to stimuli. For example, sensory neurons in the eye and ear are capable of receiving light and sound, and motor neurons are capable of moving the muscles of the body.

The PNS is divided into the somatic and visceral nervous systems. The somatic system is the part of the PNS that controls voluntary movements, and the visceral system is the part of the PNS that controls involuntary movements. The somatic system is made up of all sensory and motor neurons that are capable of receiving and responding to stimuli. The visceral system is made up of all sensory and motor neurons that are capable of receiving and responding to internal stimuli. The somatic system is the part of the PNS that controls the body's voluntary movements, while the visceral system is the part of the PNS that controls the body's involuntary movements.

The Brain

The brain is the most complex part of the nervous system, and is located in the head. It is the most complex part of the body, and is made up of many different parts. The brain is divided into the cerebrum, cerebellum, and brainstem. The cerebrum is the largest part of the brain, and is responsible for most of the body's functions. The cerebellum is located at the back of the brain, and is responsible for coordination and balance. The brainstem is located at the base of the brain, and is responsible for basic functions like breathing and heart rate.
