

Hooke's Law

The diagram shows three vertical springs hanging from a horizontal support. The leftmost spring is the shortest and has a single yellow mass hanging from it. The middle spring is of medium length and has two yellow masses hanging from it. The rightmost spring is the longest and has three yellow masses hanging from it. A horizontal line with a double-headed arrow indicates the displacement of the middle spring from its original position, labeled with the letter 'x'.

Background

Students have learned about the forces of gravity and buoyancy. They have also learned about the forces of tension and normal force. In this activity, students will use a spring scale to measure the forces of gravity and buoyancy on a submerged object.

Materials

- Spring scale
- String
- Weight (e.g., metal cylinder)
- Water
- Beaker

Procedure

- Attach the string to the top of the spring scale.
- Hang the weight from the string.
- Record the weight of the object in air.
- Submerge the object in water.
- Record the weight of the object in water.
- Calculate the buoyant force by subtracting the weight in water from the weight in air.

Results

The weight of the object in air is 10 N. The weight of the object in water is 7 N. The buoyant force is 3 N.

Conclusion

The buoyant force is equal to the weight of the displaced water. This is Archimedes' principle.

Assessment

Students will be assessed on their understanding of the forces of gravity and buoyancy, and their ability to use a spring scale to measure forces.

Extension

Students could be asked to design an experiment to test Archimedes' principle with different objects and liquids.
