PROBLEM

The owner of a small business has a computer system that includes a monitor, a tower unit, and a keyboard. The system is currently set up on a desk, but the owner wants to move it to a new location. The owner is concerned about the safety of the equipment and wants to ensure that all connections are secure.

SOLUTION

The first step is to disconnect all power from the system. This includes unplugging the power cord from the wall outlet and removing any batteries from the keyboard or mouse. Next, the equipment should be lifted safely using proper lifting techniques. The monitor should be supported by one hand while the other hand is used to disconnect the video cable. The tower unit should be lifted by the bottom edge, avoiding the top where the fan is located. Once the equipment is moved to the new location, all cables should be checked to ensure they are securely connected. Finally, the power should be restored and the system tested to ensure everything is working correctly.

SAFETY PRECAUTIONS:

- Always unplug the power cord before handling any electronic equipment.
- Use proper lifting techniques: bend at the knees, keep your back straight, and lift with your legs.
- Avoid touching sensitive components like the CPU fan or RAM modules.
- Organize cables to prevent tripping hazards.
- Test the system after moving to ensure all connections are secure.
