Lead Babies and Poisoned Housing Carolyn R. Boiarsky, 2024-09-01 Drawing on historic sources as well as present day interviews Lead Babies and Poisoned Housing is a story about systemic racism environmental injustice and the failure of government In 2016 1 100 mainly minority residents of a low income housing complex in East Chicago Indiana received a letter from the city forcibly evicting them from their homes because a high level of lead was found in the soil under their houses The residents were given two months to move Many could not find safe housing nearby The site was designated by the Environmental Protection Agency as a Superfund site because of the large amount of toxic material on it More than 1 300 similar sites are located throughout the United States Over 70 million people live within three miles of one of these sites Five years later the U S Department of Housing and Urban Development Office of Inspector General charged three federal agencies EPA HUD and CDC with causing the lead poisoning of children living in the complex The EPA responsible for the cleanup had been aware of the situation for 35 years The director of the local housing authority admitted to building the complex over a demolished lead smelter When health issues arose the housing authority blamed the residents sanitary habits rather than its own failure to maintain the structures The Centers for Disease Control and Prevention s testing of blood lead levels was revealed to be faulty In short the very agencies that were supposed to protect these people instead neglected ignored and blamed them But this isn t just a story of victimization it is also about empowerment and community members insisting their voices be heard Lead Babies and Poisoned Housing records the human side of what happens when the industries responsible for polluting leave but the residents remain Those residents tell their stories in their own words not just what happened to them but how they acted in response We should listen not only for justice but as a cautionary tale against repeated history

Children's Health, the Nation's Wealth

Institute of Medicine, National Research Council, Division of Behavioral and Social Sciences and Education, Board on Children, Youth, and Families, Committee on Evaluation of Children's Health, 2004-11-18

Children's health has clearly improved over the past several decades Significant and positive gains have been made in lowering rates of infant mortality and morbidity from infectious diseases and accidental causes improved access to health care and reduction in the effects of environmental contaminants such as lead Yet major questions still remain about how to assess the status of children's health what factors should be monitored and the appropriate measurement tools that should be used Children's Health the Nation's Wealth Assessing and Improving Child Health provides a detailed examination of the information about children's health that is needed to help policy makers and program providers at the federal state and local levels In order to improve children's health and thus the health of future generations it is critical to have data that can be used to assess both current conditions and possible future threats to children's health This compelling book describes what is known about the health of children and what is needed to expand the knowledge By strategically improving the health of children we ensure healthier future generations to come
