Violence at the Intersection Toya Z. Like,2024-08-01 Violence at the Intersection The Interlocking Impact of Race Ethnicity Gender and Class on Risk and Resilience builds upon and expands recent scholarship on the intersectionality of race ethnicity gender gender identity and class and their multiplicative effects on violent offending and victimization Specifically the work examines how these intersections of identity not only affect risks for experiences with violence but also account for the development and expansion of social capital in the form of resilience and human agency among those at risk The results of the research provide a critical assessment of how embodied identities are commonly used to assess those at risk while largely ignoring that these individuals are simultaneously at resilience This work moves beyond the extant literature by considering the role of resilience in violence among disadvantaged groups The work also contributes to growing research on identity and its centrality to experiences with violence and provides an in depth understanding of varied pathways to human agency and the development of social capital even among those who are deemed disadvantaged in society This book will appeal to undergraduate and postgraduate students as well as postdoctoral researchers interested in fields including Criminology Criminal Justice Women Gender Studies Sexuality Studies Race and Ethnicity Studies and Violence Studies At the Intersection of Hermeneutics and Homiletics Yung Suk Kim,2025-04-18 While hermeneutics involves comprehensive study of the biblical text whether through historical or literary or reader focused approaches homiletics is concerned with a selected theme message and on the composition and delivery of sermon discourse aimed at a particular audience But the border between hermeneutics and homiletics is blurry because both disciplines require readers to engage the biblical text from their own contexts This collection deals with the intersection of hermeneutics and homiletics by exploring two revelatory texts one from the Hebrew Bible and the other from the New Testament the book of Ruth and Matthew 15 21-28 a Canaanite woman's encounter with Jesus Both reflect agonizing issues that readers must tackle immigration family community identity agency race ethnicity gender class culture economy and religion A diverse group of scholars brings their transgressive perspectives to the above texts Unfolding new areas of interest inquiry and insight they will transgress authoritative readings of biblical texts fashion hermeneutic horizons in dialogue with the text and forge homiletic trajectories toward contemporary audiences Without limiting interpretation to a box this volume looks to register bold voices to perennial issues in our day Homiletic transformation occurs through the relentless resistant reading of the text and through reimagining our world

Teaching Criminology at the Intersection Rebecca Hayes, Kate Luther, Susan Caringella, 2014-08-21 Teaching about gender race social class and sexuality in criminal justice and criminology classrooms can be challenging Professors may face resistance when they ask students to examine how gender impacts victimization how race affects interactions with the police how socioeconomic status shapes experiences in court or how sexuality influences treatment in the criminal justice system Teaching Criminology at the Intersection is an instructional guide to support faculty as they navigate teaching these topics Bringing together the experience and knowledge of expert scholars this book provides time strapped academics with an accessible how to guide for the classroom where the dynamics and discrimination of gender race class and sexuality demographics intersect and permeate criminal justice concerns In the book the authors of each chapter discuss how they teach a particular contemporary criminal justice issue and provide their suggestions for best practice while grounding their ideas in pedagogical theory Chapters end with a toolkit of recommended activities assignments films readings or websites As a teaching handbook Teaching Criminology at the Intersection is appropriate reading for graduate level criminology criminal justice and women's and gender studies teaching instruction courses and as background reading and reference for instructors in these disciplines

Understanding the Intersections of Race, Gender, and Gifted Education Nicole M. Joseph, 2020-06-01 This book seeks to understand the complexities of talented and high performing Black girls and women in STEM across the P-20 trajectory Analogously this volume aims to understand the intersections between giftedness its identification and racial gender and academic discipline identities The dearth of literature on this subject suggests that Black girls and women have unique experiences in gifted programming in large part because of factors associated with gifted programs in general Key factors affecting Black students and Black girls in particular are identification and underrepresentation These factors can be shaped by interlocking systems of racism classism gender bias and other forms of oppression Teachers in the P-12 educational system are the first identifiers for gifted programming and look for student characteristics such as natural leadership inquisitiveness and students' desire to be in gifted programs Because many Black girls are stereotyped and teachers rarely have deep understanding of cultural differences Black girls are less likely to be identified for gifted programming More specifically Black girls lack of representation in gifted mathematics or STEM programs contradicts research that finds that girls reach several developmental advantages ahead of boys For example research has shown that girls talk and read earlier receive higher grades in elementary school and drop out less often than boys Other studies have also shown that Black girls have higher mathematics career aspirations than their White and Latina female peers yet they are rarely represented in gifted math and Advanced Placement AP math programs Furthermore the underrepresentation of urban low income African American students in gifted education is related to low test scores student and family choice a lack of teacher referral and a mismatch between home and school cultures Some high performing Black girls and women are participating in programs that nurture and support their racial and gender identities and contribute to them developing into strong and efficacious girls and women who have agency in their lives This anthology includes studies that illustrate the complexities of intersectionality in various STEM programs while also demonstrating that increasing access to STEM for Black girls and women is doable
