

Impact Of Social Media On Society

Social networking websites provides a platform where people can share their ideas and experiences. It provides an opportunity for the people around the world to connect and be part of an international community where everyone's voice can be heard. While there seem to be positive benefits that come out of social media, those positives are the negatives that make social networking websites corrosive to the 'real' community. The idea of creating your own persona is what makes the online world different than the real world. You can choose to be different and this difference is what affects us as people and as a community. Just as how novelists write novels and create their fantasy world in books; social media allows people to create their own fantasy world where they find a sense of happiness and acceptance. It is human nature to feel better when they are praised or appreciated. This sooner or later becomes an addiction and people get falsely motivated to do things in seek of other people's approval. Therefore, recently-developed social networking websites such as facebook, twitter, etc are corrosive to 'real' communities because they influence social/medical problems, the feeling of unfulfillment in life (productivity), and the lack of motivation to do work.

Social networking websites can lead to social/medical problems for an individual which can be harmful to real communities. Cyberbullying is the use of electronic communication to bully a person, typically by sending messages of an intimidating or threatening nature

1. A study shows that 20–40% of adolescents have reported being a victim of cyberbullying.
2. A study, published in 2010, found that 15% of adolescents reported being bullied by a peer in the past 12 months.
