The Language of Thought in Late Medieval Philosophy Jenny Pelletier,Magali Roques,2018-01-02 This edited volume presents new lines of research dealing with the language of thought and its philosophical implications in the time of Ockham It features more than 20 essays that also serve as a tribute to the ground breaking work of a leading expert in late medieval philosophy Claude Panaccio Coverage addresses topics in the philosophy of mind and cognition externalism mental causation resemblance habits sensory awareness the psychology illusion representationalism concepts universal transcendental identity syncategorematic logic and language definitions syllogisms modality supposition obligationes etc action theory belief will action and more A distinctive feature of this work is that it brings together contributions in both French and English the two major research languages today on the main theme in question It unites the most renowned specialists in the field as well as many of Claude Panaccio s former students who have engaged with his work over the years In furthering this dialogue the essays render key topics in fourteenth century thought accessible to the contemporary philosophical community without being anachronistic or insensitive to the particularities of the medieval context As a result this book will appeal to a general population of philosophers and historians of philosophy with an interest in logic philosophy of language philosophy of mind and metaphysics Act-Based Conceptions of Propositional Content Friederike Moltmann,Mark Textor,2017-07-03 The notion of a propositional content plays a central role in contemporary philosophy of language Propositional content makes up both the meaning of sentences and the content of propositional attitudes such as belief One particular view about propositional content has been dominant in analytic philosophy namely the Fregean conception of propositions as abstract mind independent objects that come with truth conditions But propositions in this sense raise a range of issues which have become a center of debate in current philosophy of language In particular how should propositions as abstract objects be understood and how can they represent things and be true or false A number of philosophers in contemporary analytic philosophy as well as in early analytic philosophy and phenomenology have approached the notion of a propositional content in a different way not by starting out with an abstract truth bearer but by focusing on cognitive acts of agents such as acts of judging It is in terms of such acts that the notion of a propositional content on their view should be understood The act based perspective historically goes back to the work of Central European philosophers in particular that of Husserl Twardowski Meinong and Reinach However their work has been unduly neglected and is in fact largely inaccessible to contemporary analytic philosophers The volume presents a central selection of work of these philosophers that bear on an act based conception of philosophical content some of which in new translations one paper by Reinach some of which published in English for the very first time two papers by Twardowski In addition the volume presents new work by leading contemporary philosophers of language pursuing or discussing an act based conception of propositional content Moreover the book contains a crosslinguistic study of nominalizations for actions and products a distinction that plays a central role in the philosophy of language of Twardowski
