Year Book Merchants' Association of New York, 1920 The Downsizing of Economics Professors Steven Payson, 2017-10-24 The number of economics professors now teaching at universities will decline substantially over the next couple of decades This will happen for one main reason the advent of distance learning especially in the form of Massive Open Online Courses MOOCs which enable a single professor to lecture to tens of thousands of students Other academic fields will undoubtedly encounter similar reductions in their numbers of professors However as this book argues at several levels academic economics is the one profession that is most qualified to study and address the topic In this sense it is the one profession that should best recognize the economic benefits of this transition which this book describes and take responsibility for leading the transition among all academic fields Unfortunately the position espoused by several academic economists has been against this inevitable transition a position that politically upholds their employment and the status of their institutions They have asserted that MOOCs lower the quality of education and threaten the financial viability of traditional universities Based on extensive evidence and analysis however this book argues that their position untenable Their position is hypocritical as well given the fact that economics professors more than anyone else have upheld the idea that jobs should be lost and new ones should be gained in response to technological changes that promote economic efficiency There is also irony in the fact that the high tuitions required to maintain traditional classrooms effectively deny a college education to those who cannot afford it Thus unsound arguments that traditional lectures are needed to preserve the quality of education actually do not improve the quality of education but have the only real effect of denying education to many people who would otherwise be able to receive it To address this topic comprehensively the book goes deep into fundamental questions about what economics professors really do with their time and energy and what they should be doing in the best interests of their students and of society These are areas that the profession has needed to address for a long time but has failed to do so UCSF Magazine, 1988 The Big Flatline Jeff Rubin, 2012-10-16 In an urgent follow up to his best selling Why Your World Is About To Get A Whole Lot Smaller Jeff Rubin argues that the end of cheap oil means the end of growth What it will be like to live in a world where growth is over Economist and resource analyst Jeff Rubin is certain that the world's governments are getting it wrong Instead of moving us toward economic recovery the measures being taken around the globe right now are digging us into a deeper hole Both politicians and economists are missing the fact that the real engine of economic growth has always been cheap abundant fuel and resources But that era is over The end of cheap oil Rubin argues signals the end of growth and the end of easy answers to renewing prosperity With China and India sucking up the lion's share of the world's ever more limited resources the rest of us will have to make do with less But is this all bad Rubin points out that there is no research to show that people living in countries with hard charging economies are happier and plenty of research to show that some of the most contented people on the planet live in places with no growth or slow growth But bad or good it's the new reality and Rubin reveals how our day to day lives will be drastically changed

The Expendables Jeff Rubin,2020-08-18 From the 1 bestselling author of Why Your World Is About to Get A Whole Lot Smaller a provocative far reaching account of how the middle class got stuck with the bill for globalization and how the blowback from Brexit to Trump to populist Europe will change the developed world Real wages in North America have not risen since the 1970s Union membership has collapsed Full time employment is beginning to look like a quaint idea from the distant past If it seems that the middle class is in retreat around the developed world it is Former CIBC World Markets Chief Economist Jeff Rubin argues that all this was foreseeable back when Canada the United States and Mexico first started talking free trade Labour argued then that manufacturing jobs would move to Mexico Free trade advocates disagreed Today Canadian and American factories sit idle More steel is used to make bottlecaps than cars Meanwhile Mexico has become one of the world s biggest automotive exporters And it s not just NAFTA Cheap oil low interest rates global deregulation and tax policies that benefit the rich all have the same effect the erosion of the middle class Growing global inequality is a problem of our own making Rubin argues And solving it won t be easy if we draw on the same ideas about capital and labour right and left that led us to this cliff Articulating a vision that dovetails with the ideas of both Naomi Klein and Donald Trump The Expendables is an exhilaratingly fresh perspective that is at once humane and irascible fearless and rigorous and most importantly timely GDP is growing the stock market is up and unemployment is down but the surprise of the book is that even the good news is good for only one percent of us
